REED IS DOWNED AGAIN.

The Democrats Have Another Field Day

AND CARRY ALL BEFORE THEM

WASHINGTON, June 20 .- [Special.]-There is no longer any doubt of the accuracy of the statement contained in these dispatches last Tuesday that the president told an intimate friend a few days ago that he intended to retire to the practice of law at the end of his present term.

The statement comes to your correspondent this evening in such shape as to impart to it

James H. Woodard, the California agent of the Wabash railroad, and an old personal friend of the president, called upon him, and while silver was under discussion the president defined his position as unalterably opposed to free coinage, and added substantially that personally he had nothing to gain by acceding to the demands for free coinage, as he intended to retire at the end of his term.

The president, it is understood, has made the same statement to other Triends within the past

The Fight in the House Resumed.

The democrats are yet on top. They have Reed down, and still remain cated on his neck.

Indeed, the democrats added another point to their victory of yesterday, by the house approving the journal as amended yesterday, striking out the reference of the senate freecoinage bill to the committee on coinage.

Reed's lieutenants used every possible means, under the rules, including filibustering, to prevent this, and had repeated roll calls for that purpose, but on every one they were defeated by the combination of democrats and western republicans. However, on the question of approving the journal as amended, the democrats came within an ace of deby Mr. Dargan, of South Carolina, voting with the republicans. His vote made it a tie, 131 to 131. The democratic leaders, however, kept tally, and knew the result before the vote was announced.

COMPELLED HIM TO VOTE RIGHT. They crowded around Mr. Dargan, and after a few minutes of earnest persuasion, he changed his vote from no to aye, giving the democrats two majority.

Losing on this, Reed, with his bulldog ten acity, whipped his men in line to take up a conference report, which was privileged. That, however, was soon disposed of, and Mr. Bland introduced a resolution that the silver bill be taken from the spoaker's table, and the senate amendments concurred in. This was debated for some time, during which Mr. Morrow, of California, a republican, made a splendid free-coinage speech, in which he censured his party and Reed for their action in trying to a bill which a majority of the body favored. The speech was received with wild applause by all the democrats, and a number of repub-

Then Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, took the floor to reply. He struck at Judge Crisp by stating that he was surprised to see the gentleman from Georgia, and other candidates for speaker, following the lead of Mr. Bland. After a number of other speeches from both sides, Reed ruled the Bland resolution out of order on account of today being private bill day, and under the rules the regular order must prevail. He would however, state that in its order he would either place the silver bill before the house for action or announce its position, and the democrats need have no fears, but that they would be recognized to make proper motions. This the ocratic leaders considered a victory, and as they recognized Reed was right in ruling moved to adjourn. The motion was voted down, but just as the vote was announced the hour of adjournment arrived, and the fight ended, so far as today was concerned.

WILL BE RESUMED TODAY. Tomorrow the matter will come up again. Another long debate, with repeated roll-calls, is expected. The silver bill might be laid aside for the present, but the democrats have won a very decided victory, and Reed has sustained his first defeat. It is very humiliating to the big man from Maine, but he is determined to keep on fighting, although he is down, and to stay off a vote proper on free-coinage as long

REED'S GAME. Reed is working for the presidential nomination. With Harrison out of the race, he expects to be the administration's candidate for the presidency in '92. His idea is to get the noneyed interests behind him, by holding up the silver bill until he can force a compromise measure, which will be adopted by the conference committee of the two houses. This compromise he hopes to have, in the shape of the house bill, with the bullion redemption feature left out, and a legal tender clause put in. However, the silver men have free coinage in pref-erence to a tariff bill, or a national election law bill, and they propose to hold these mat-ters up until the fate of the free-coinage bill is

Judge Crisp has shown himself a master of parliamentary tactics in this fight, and a leader who can cope with Reed in any kind of a battle. Indeed, Crisp has placed himself at the head of his party, and is Carlisle's acknowledged successor as leader of the democratical the company of the

The journal having been read and approved, Mr. Stewart, of Vermont, asked for recognition with the conference report on the anti-trust bill, and Mr. Bland was on his feet, raising the question of consideration. Mr. Biand's purpose was to offer the following

Biand's purpose was to offer the following resolution:
That house bill 5,381, directing the purchase of silver bullion and the issue of treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes, with senate amendments, be taken from the speaker's table and the senate amendment concurred in.

The house determined—yeas 144, nays 102—to consider the conference report.

After a short debate, in course of which Mr. Kerr, of Iowa, declared that it was the first bill directed against trusts that had ever passed the American congress, and that in fourteen years' control of the house the democratic party had not produced a syllable of legislation of the kind.

cratic party had not produced a syllable or legislation of the kind.

The report was adopted—yeas 243, nays 0.

Mr. Dalzell presented the report of the elections committee in the contested Mississippi election case of Chalmers vs. Morgan, in favor of Mr. Morgan, and Mr. Rowell presented the report from the same committee upon the case of Miller vs. Elliot, in favor of Miller.

Mr. Bland then opposed his resolution to take up the silver bill.

Mr. McKinley made the point of order that the motion was not privileged; that the only way to reach the speaker's table was to follow the order of morning business.

way to reach the speaker's table was to follow the order of morning business.

Mr. Conger, of Iowa, added, as a further point, amidst sarcastic democratic laughter, that the bill was not on the speaker's table,
but in the hands of the coinage committee.

Mr. Bland argued in opposition to the point of order, and held that the bill was on the speaker's table, and, therefore, within reach.

Mr. Springer, of Illinois, said that the effect of the special order, under which the bill was originally considered, was to take the bill out of the committee of the whole. The only question was whether the senate had added new matter, was whether the senate had added new matter, or a new amendment, that was subject to consideration in committee of the whole. The original house bill had an indefinite appropriation clause—the bill as it came from the senate had an identical clause, except that the order of the words was slightly changed. The new matter inserted by the senate was not subject to reference to committee of the whole. If the friends of free silver would vote in the proper direction they would soon have an opportunity to vote directly upon the bill as it came from the senate.

Mr. Conger maintained that the appropria-tions were for different purposes. But aside from that all that the house had done so far was to blot out or erace the reference of the bill. How did that affect the fact? There was record ovidence that the speaker had referred the bill to the committee on coimage; that it had been delivered by the journal clerk to the clerk of the coinage committee, and that he had it in his possession. If the house wanted to recall the bill from the coinage committee it could do so by proceeding under the rules.

Mr. Crisp wanted to know where the evidence was that the bill had been referred. The house spoke only through its journal.

Mr. Conger said that the gentleman could see the bill in the committee room.

Mr. Crisp replied that that made no difference in the legislative situation.

Mr. Conger, nevertheless, maintained that the bill was still properly and actually before his committee.

Mr. Morrow, of California, said that the action of the house yesterday was exceedingly significant of its disposition. The fact was that there was no reference at all; that the speaker had no authority to refer the bill, and that his action was not voidable, but void. The fact was that the bill-was upon the speaker's table. The mere physical fact that the gentleman from Iowa, or his clerk, had actual possession of the bill made no difference in its parliamentary position.

Mr. Butterworth declared that there were not twenty-five men under the dome of the capitol who believed that the bill was incorctly referred, upon their oath. [Republican rectly referred, upon their oath. [Republican applause.]

Mr. Williams, of Illinois, said that yesterday, while the motion to reconsider was pending, and the resolution had been adopted, the chairman of the committee on coinage had walked up to the speaker's desk, taken up a bill that he (Williams) had every reason to believe was the silver bill, had handed it over to the clerk of the committee on coinage, who had refused to answer his (Williams's) question as to whether or not it was the silver bill, and had carried it away. Why had this thing been done? It required an explanation. It looked like a conspiracy to obtain physical possession of the bill and deprive the house of an opportunity to pass upon it.

of the bill and deprive the house of an oppor-tunity to pass upon it.

Mr. Conger said that the bill had been de-livered to his clerk before 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and had been receipted for. During the afternoon, upon the request of the journal clerk, it had been put in his possession for a short time in order to make some clerical en-dorsements, but he (Mr. Conger) had again short time in order to make some clerical endorsements, but he (Mr. Conger) had again taken it back to the committee clerk.

Mr. Bland modified the language of his resolution, so as to direct that the speaker, under rule 24, lay the matter on the table, including the silver bill before the house for action. The speaker said that, perhaps, he could simplify the matter a little, and suggested to Mr. Bland that he understood his wish to be simply to get at the matter when it would naturally come up, supposing that it was upon the speaker's table, (not passing upon the matter at this time). What the chair proposed to do was that when the bill at its hiatus, whatever it might be, was reached, it should be brought before the house. But the gentleman did not seem to consider that this was Friday—private bill day—and that private bills alone were in order.

Mr. Bland asked whether the bill would be laid before the house temorrow morning.

The speaker declined to decide that question

Mr. McComas, of Maryland, demanded the

The Speaker—Whenever the bill would be in order, providing that the views of the other side were correct, about which the chair presents no opinion, because he does not think it sents no opinion, because he does not think to is the proper time.

As Messrs. Bland and Springer insisted on specific ruling, the speaker finally ruled that Mr. Bland's resolution, to proceed to the consideration of the silver bill, was not in order under the rules.

Mr. Bland appealed from the decision.

Mr. McKinley moved to lay the appeal on the table.

The year and nays were ordered, pending which Mr. Crisp moved that the house adjourn. This motion was defeated, but the hour of 5 o'clock arrived, and the house, under the rule, took a recess till 8 o'clock, the evening session to be for pension business.

At the end of the second day's battle, over the silver bill, the forces drew off, leaving the situation of the bill itself—if that could be defined—practically in the hands of the clerk of the committee on coinage, but where it is from a parliamentary standpoint, cannot be stated until the speaker, "at the proper time," as he says, rules upon the question. Undoubtedly a great majority of the republicans take the ground that it is still with the committee on coinage. The free-coinage men intend to renew their attacks tomorrow, and to endeavor by voting down all privileged motion, to get the speaker's table. If they progress so far, they will be in position to know officially the speaker's belief as to the situation of the bill.

Mr. Crisp's motion to adjourn today pending the decision of appeal from the speaker's ruling on Mr. Bland's resolution, was made in deference to a feeling among a number of democrats that the silver bill would not be in order on private bill day. It served to consume time up to dark, when the house, by a standing order, was obliged to take a recess. Meanwhile, whips are earnestly at work. It appears that the test votes of yesterday revenled the fact that twenty-seven republicans were absent and unpaired, as against ten democrats in like position. Republican leaders started out today under the impression that democrats in like position. Republican leaders started out today under the impression that they had a majority, to reverse yesterday's action, expunging the reference to the silver bill from the journal. But after the first two offirm the journal. But after the first two votes they were undeceived, thrown upon the defensive and compelled to abandon that plan, owing to absenteeism.

Mr. Carlton's views.
Mr. Carlton, of Georgia, feels that The Con-STITUTION did him an injustice in the head lines of the interview with him in Tuesday's paper. Mr. Carlton is not a candidate for reelection. He so stated in a recent card, and he new repeats it. However, should the people of his district see fit to tender him a re-nomination, it is possible that he might accept it, but he is in no sense a candidate.

An Appropriation Moved for a New Office But the Senate Defeated It.

WASHINGTON, June 20 .- The post-office appropriation bill, and consular and diplomatic appropriation bill was reported and placed on the calendar. The consideration of the legislative appropriation bill was resumed, the question being on the point of order made by Mr. Allison against the amendment to increase the salary of the commissioner of the land officer from $4,000 to $5,000, and of the assistant commissioner for $4,000 to $5,000 and of the satisfant commissioner for $4,000 to $ from $4,000 to $5,000, and of the assistant commissioner from $3,000 to $3,500.

The vice-president submitted the question to the senate, and the amendment was declared to be in order—yeas 33, nays 14. The amendment was agreed to—yeas 28, nays 16.

Mr. Harris moved to insert an item of $1,440 for a superintendent of senate stables. A discussion took place on this item, in the course of which it was stated by Mr. Allison that there were more employes than horses in the stables, and by Mr. Hale that if the establishment belonged to a private individual there would be but one man to attend to it.

The amendment was ruled out on a point of order.

The amendment was ruled out on a point of order.

The motion by Mr. Dolph to increase the compensation of the surveyor-general of Oregon from $1,800 to $2,500 was made the text of a speech by Mr. Allison against the general movement to increase salaries. He spoke of complaints, whether just or otherwise, against the extravagance of the senate—at a time, too, when there was prevailing over the country a belief that those who were engaged in industrial pursuits were receiving fair compensation, and when a great many people were suffering from low prices and little employment. He appealed to the senators on both sides not to go on increasing salary after salary.

Upon an appeal from the decision of the presiding officer, ruling out of order an increase of the salary of one of the senate clerks, a discussion took place, in the course of which Mr. Plumb sucke of the average of the average of the salary of one of the senate clerks, a discussion took place, in the course of which Mr. Plumb sucket of the average of the average of the average of the salary of one of the average of the average oussion took place, in the course of which Mr. Plumb spoke of the extravagance of the senate in the matter of its employes. The expense now, he said, was at least $100,000 a year more than they ought to be. The evil was growing every year, and it would soon become so great that it would become a political issue, and he would not be surprised if men were soon elected to the senate on the pledge of ruthlessly and relentlessly applying the knife to excrescences around the senate. The force of the senate employes was extraordinary and exthe senate employes was extraordinary and ex-were agreed to.

A long contest arose over the effort of Mr. Stewart to have stricken from the bill the item of $3,000 salary of the executive officer of the geological survey. Mr. Stewart's amendment to this effect was rejected once, but was renewed later. A good deal of debate was directed to the attack upon Superintendent Powell, personally and professionally, by Mr. Stewart and others, and a vigorous defense of him by Messrs. Ingalls, Gorman and others. Reference having been made to a newspaper interview in which Major Powell spoke disrespectfully of Mr. Stewart and of inferences which inspired his opposition, Mr. Gorman said that the newspaper press would misrepresent any one. A large part of the press did not believe that there was an honest man in the legislative or executive branch of Stewart to have stricken from the bill the ite man in the legislative or executive branch of the government. He paid no attention to what the press said of Mr. Powell, or of any senator.

At the close of the discussion the amendment was withdrawn by Mr. Stewart.
The bill was then passed.
Mr. Edmunds offered a resolution, which went over till tomorrow, for the appointment of a committee of seven senators to take into immediate consideration the state of the administrative control of the senator and to reimmediate consideration the state of the su-ministrative service of the senate, and to re-port as early as may be what measures should be adopted in respect of the greatest efficiency and economy of service.

The senate adjourned.

Bitten by a Mad Dog.

Asheviller, N. C., June 20.—Much excitement was ereated here this morning by the announcement that a mad dog was on the streets. The police were put in search of the rabid animal, but before it was killed it had bitten Thomas Carpening, a white boy about two years old, three times in the arm; James Scott, a colored boy fifteen years old, in the hand, and a mule and several dogs. The bitten boys were at once taken in hand by physicians and their wounds cauterized. A subscription has been started for the purpose of raising money to send the bitten boys to New York for treatment by the Pasteur process.

HARDEMAN AND NORTHEN Meet in loint Debate at Law-

THE CAMPAIGN IN FULL TILT

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., June 20 .- [Special.] The gubernatorial campaign was opened here today by a joint discussion between Colonel Hardeman and Colonel Northen. It was an old-time joint discussion-spirited and hightoned on both sides-no mud-flinging, but good, sprightly sparring; a regular give and take above the belt, with honors to your antagonist, going and coming.

The high courtesy in the midst of all this hafd hitting was beautiful to behold. It was like the prize-ring, where a couple of doughty champions will shake hands with the stern, 'may-the-best-man-win." If the campaign continues as it began today, it will be an honor to Georgia and a revelation to those who grew since the days of the old-time hustings.

The speaking began at 11 o'clock in the handsome new court-house which Gwinnets has recently completed. It would be hard to get a more comfortable hall for 250 or 300 people. The acoustics are perfect and the ventilation fine. In spite of the great heat outside the audience listened in comfort for nearly three hours.

But to the speaking. Judge Tyler Peeples the long-time editor of the Gwinnett Herald, introduced Colonel Hardeman in a few words, thanking those present for leaving their crops at such a time to hear political views discussed He referred significantly to Colonel Harde man's heroic record-in the days of reconstruction, and led up to it deftly by an allusion to Ben Hill, then to Hardeman, defying the federal officers in the fight to redeem the state. Colonel Hardeman Speaks.

Colonel Hardeman was received with applause, and began happily as follows: "I believe it was Pericles, who, when he wa about to make an address in public, prayed the Gods that he might say nothing but that which would be beneficial to those who heard him. Thumbly follow his example today in saying that it is my earnest wish and purpose to say nothing to wound the sensibilities of any one-to say nothing but that which will redound to the good of the people and the welfare of the whole state of Georgia."

With this disclaimer he launched at onc into the discussion, beginning by laying a background of gloomy prospect, against which the play of his brilliant talents shone luminously.

"I confess," said he, "it saddens me when I contemplate the troubles and dangers that threaten this people. Like the war-horse, I snuff danger from afar. I am no alarmist. I would encourage hope rather than excite a fear; I am no political pessimist, always imagining everything for the worst, but I must confess that I see a cloud gathering again in the southern sky that presages danger and storm. God grant that my fears are groundless; but the threatened legislation of the federal government convinces me that there are in store for this people more trials, more usurpation, more oppression, more subversion of their rights, more restriction of their liberty.

"To meet this emergency and be prepared for the dangers of the hour we must have no division, no strife among our people. Class must not be arrayed against class, or industry against industry, nor trades against professions but all must be of one mind, and purpose and heart for the maintenance of our state, and the supremacy of our social and political organization, the only hope of successful resistance to aggression and the dangers that con-front us by the passage of pend-ing measures in the federal congress will be found in that party whose efforts gained our peace, defied power and rescued the liber ties of the people-the democratic party of the country." [Applause.]

Having laid this, the principal plank of his platform, Colonel Hardeman proceeded to the more personal part of the discussion. Having said that Houston county had, by an overwhelming vote, unsolicited on his part, cast mostly by farmers and alliancemen, asked him to bear the banner of the whole people, he proceeded at some length to discuss the question of his worthiness to bear it.

"In this contest," said he, "the people have a right to ask some questions. Is the candidate honest? Is he capable? Is he true to his party? Is he true to his people? In regard to the first, I trust that a reference to my ple. In reference to the capacity to fill the ple. In reference to the capacity to fill the chief executive office of Georgia, I can only say that I have been trusted by the people of Georgia—seven times a member of the general assembly, three times its presiding officer, once before the war and once since the war a member of congress. In each and all of these positions I endeavored to discharge my whole duty, and it is for the citizens who honored me to say whether I did that duty faithfully or not. It is for them to pronounce judgment on my capacity."

In reply to the question, "Is he true to his party." Colonel Hardeman referred at some length to his fight for democracy in fifty-seven counties of the state in the days of reconstruction when federal bayonets were at the polls.

"An old whig, a whig before the war," said he, "a Henry Clay whig, opposed to secession, I novertheless felt that the time had come when all past bitterness should be forgotten and nothing should be known or felt but the and nothing should be known or felt but the best interests of the people, and that was to rescue our homes and our home rule from the hands of the usurper, restore our government and put in position the which people of the state. I marched through federal bayonets to the polls and cast my ballot, and the first speech I made after the war, I was surrounded by federal officers, one of them the postmaster at Atlants. There, in the face of the federal

Has there ever been a note of warning of danger that I have not responded with my

Then he made the application of his argument to the present situation:

"The same party that overthrew our institutions and our state governments, the same party that overthrew our social institutions, is again threatening us. Federal legislation of a threatening character will doubtless pass the present congress. Federal bayonets may be again seen around our ballot-boxes. If not, federal supervisors, at least, will again control our elections, and it will be then for the united people to stand firm in the maintenance of their rights and their liberties.

"Why, then, do I say we should be a united people? Because, fellow-citizens—you will pardon me when I say it—I think there is an effort to divide our people. There is an effort abroad in the land to make a party within party. There is an impression on the minds of some within the great party that gave you your rights and restored to you your government, that that party is not equal to the emergency, and will not discharge its duties to the people, and for that reason, I say there are some in our midst-I don't know that they may be found herebut some elsewhere who are endeavering to create a party within a party. Call after call is made for political gatherings; organization is perfected, their calls are made. We are called together frequently, not as democrats, but simply as members of the alliance, to put men in nomination for the different offices of the country. In doing what we do, do we not create a party of a particular class? I may be asked, are not the alliancemen in the democratic party good and true democrats? Fabe it from me to make any such allusion, I know that if there is any people on earth I know that if there is any people on the who have shown their devotion to their state and their country, it is the planters of Georgia. Returning from the war they found rained homes, property gone; with a courage born of despair they went together forth and beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruninghooks. Palsied be this tongue and stricken this right arm if I should make such an assertion; but do you not see that the farmers of Georgia may be, by injudicious advice, placed in opposition to their friends and divided so that they cannot unite again. It would be, therefore, a party of one class arrayed against the people of every other class and profession in the state. This kind of strife engenders bitterness. Boycotts are going on. The alliance was not to interfere with politics or religion. This action is necessarily political, because when this party meets together, it is to put in position members of the organization, regardless of the rights of any other profession. I may not see you more, fellow-citizens, and I speak to you as one whose head is whitening for the tomb, standing as I do amid the graves of those who are gone before. I feel that it is a duty I owe this people to warn them that the division of the white people of Georgia means the supremacy of the republican party, and placing in power the negroes of the country. This I know you do not desire; but, I say, look at it, fellow-citizens, if you will!

"I ask my brother alliancemen if it was not stated in your halls that the alliance was not to interfere in politics or religion. What is the consequence? What will result from this thing? As I said before, strife and division will come. I feel it—I feel it solemnly. Prayerfully I have considered this question, and I regret that I am not called upon to say to my brethren: 'Halt, halt, befere you divide the people!'

"What says my friend Grady in one his strong speeches? 'White people, stick together. Let there be no divisions mong you. Division means the subversion of your rights."

Here Colonel Hardeman told an anecdote of an Irish sailer who undertook to work on a arm. He stopped the ox wagon in the road and hitched the mule he was riding to the got to kicking and the oxen ran away. The wagon struck a ditch and turned over, the oxen swapped sides of the tongue and the mule got turned endways. The Irishman hollered "Police! murder!"

"What's the matter?" said his master. "Why," said he, "the main yard has got around to the rudder of the craft and the laroard ox is on the starboard side and the star board ox is on the larboard side. The craft is turned bottom-upward and the keel is on top.
The whole thing is gone to hell, and I am go-

"So, my friends, if you get divided and mixed up you will get in a predicament after awhile where you will say the whole thing i This was followed by great laughter and applanse.

Colonel Hardeman reviewed the history of the state grauge. Outside issues, he said, sprang upon it. One was direct trade. The president of the state exchange was one of the irectors of the grange. It was said to the farmers, "Give us your support and we will save you ten or twelve dollars a bale on your cotton." What was the result? Not one dol-lar's worth of stock did you get returned, not one dollar for the cotton.

"Promises are being made again," said he,
"which I fear will not be fulfilled. "Henry Grady never said a truer thing is his life than when he said in his Elberto speech, 'Ask nothing from your state that yo can do yourselves; ask nothing from the fee eral government that your state can do."

"They tell you the agricultural interests are drooping. I have heard this cry; fellow-citizens. Thank God I have endeavored to warn the people when I saw companies were seeking to mortgage their lands and some were making themselves hewers of wood and drawers of water to foreign corporations. But Governor Smith said when they told him about the depreciation of agriculture: 'How in the name of God can you sink lower than you commenced? You returned from the war and found nothing but the graves of your som and the ashes of your homes.' THE CONSTITUTION, two or three days ago, had an article showing that two thousand farmers of Georgia had increased their property $900,000 in the showing that two thousand farmers of Georgia had increased their property $900,000 in the last five years.

"I knew the appeal to throw off debt was not in vain, and today Georgia is progressing and prospectous. It is true the night has been long and dreary and dark, but thank God morning has dawned and sunlightis gilding the hill tops and valleys. Thank God the bow of promise arches the heavens with its glory. I told you this would come; and today, like the man of old, I stand upon Nebo and look out upon the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and Naphthali; and though I may not enter the promised land, I general and the federal army, I raised my voice for the right of our people and demanded that they receive the government they were entitled to." [Applause.]

After pursuing this line to the redemption of the state from republican rule, he ended:
"I ask the question, have I faltered once since?"
Then Job was smitten sore and afflicted, and his house. One day the Sabeans came and fell upon them and the Chaldeans fell upon them. Then Job was smitten sore and afflicted, and scraped himself with a potsherd as he sat in the ashe. But Job had children born in his old age, and all his goods were restored unto him; but it was the same Job who had scraped himself with a potsherd. So it is with the people of my old state. God has tried us and afflicted us, but at last plenty is laughing on her hills and her barns are full. God keep her prosperous, and let her stand firm now and forever, in the old party of our country." [Great applause.]

Colonel Northen's Reply.

When Colonel Hardeman had concluded Colonel Northen went up to the stand with Mr. C. H. Brandt, of Lawrenceville, who in-

Colonel Northen went up to the stand with Mr. C. H. Brandt, of Lawrenceville, who introduced him as follows:

As chairman of the executive committee of the democratic party of Gwinnett county, I have the honor to appear before you to introduce one of the gubernatorial candidates, and by virtue of that fact solely has this honor been conferred upon me. What I shall say in introducing him will be that without detracting by one word from the distinguished gentleman who has taken his seat, it gives me great pleasure to testify to the high character and unsullied reputation and the spotless life of the great and good, and true Christian gentleman. His hands are clean, his life is pure, the cloak of the demagogue is not a part of his apparel—he comes before you as the champion of the people and the people's friend. His life has been fruitfor his people, but in a different line from that of the gentleman who has taken his seat It is as clear as the sun in the cloudless mid-day, and his every virtue as radiant as the rainbow in its emblazoned beauty. His purpose is not to array class against class. He does not come here to array the alliance against the democratic party, or the democratic party against the alliance. He is a democrati from head to foot, and from heart to tongue [applause], and if I know myself and know him and his life, I would travel from center to circumference of this state, and Hon. W. J. Northen would be the last man who would disdain to array the alliance against the democratic party, and if you give him the commission of governor, I think I am sure that it is a banner that will never trail in infamy. I now take pleasure in introducing to you the Christian gentleman and spotless man, Hon. W. J. Northen.

Colonel Northen was greeted with applause as he rose.

Colonel Northen was greeted with applause

He said : "Fellow Citizens: I am here upon the invitation of citizens of this county to speak to you upon public questions that connect them-selves with my candidacy for the high office of governor of Georgia. Until very recently, I was gratified to know two things. First, that there seemed to be no opposition that had declared itself to my successful efforts in this candidacy. I am now confronted with the fact that by a strange and sudden combination of circumstances, I am confronted with the distinguished war horse from Bibb, a name which has been given him by the people of his county and a name which he has used himself. Now my friends, let me say that there is no man in Georgia to where I are there is no man in Georgia to whom I am a greater friend than Colonel Hardeman. My conlust toward him will attest that. He may tell you what it is. I will not. There is no man in Georgia who would do him honor sooner than I. He has no friend with the same power of speech who would pay him a grander eulogy than I. He deserves it. Having said this little, I propose to say a little "The time has come in the history of the government of this state, in the history of the democratic party, for some plain talk."

"That's what we want," said Mr. Beck, the

"I propose right new to do it," continued Colonel Northen. "Other people talk plain, and I propose to do it myself. I don't deny any man's right to run for governor. I have not homestead upon the office. [Laughter.] Any man here today can oppose me for this position, and it is his right. I recognize the right of any county in Georgia to say it prefers the man of its choice above any other. I recognize the right of the citizens of Georgia to say they prefer Colonel Hardeman to and let me say to you right here that any man who exercises that right is an American citizen, and is not the less my friend. [Applause.] This is a free country. Who dare put his fist in my throat and say I shall not do as I please? Now, having conceded this, let me

"I deny that there is any necessity for anybody to be a candidate against me for the high office of governor of Georgia upon the condi-tions set forth in Colonel Hardeman's letter tions set forth in Colonel Hardeman's letter and in his speech. What are they? The first is that I am going to break up the democratic party. Well, now, I say, if I was going to do that, in the name of all justice, let somebody defeat me. But I am a democrat. I thank my friend for having told you so. It comes better from him. But I am an uncompromising democrat. I was never anything else but a democrat. However much I honor men who, democrat. However much I honor men who, before the war, belonged to the opposing party, and they were men—I never was a whig, I never was a knownothing; and I have always been a democrat. [Applause.] I am going to continue a democrat. [Applause.] I am by God's help going to die a democrat. [Applause.] On that platform then I stand. Democracy government of the people, by the people, and for the people. [Applause.] That is the kind of a democrat I am.

"Ah, well, but these other fellows! Who? The farmers." The farmers of Georgia are not democrats? Heaven save the mark! Why, a friend told me yesterday this idea was advanced to him. 'Bill,' said the man to him, 'they tell me the farmers are not demo-

"'Not democrats?' said he, 'who in the hell are the democrats, if the farmers are not?' [Applause.] Well, I don't say 'who in the hell' are the democrats, but I say if the farmers are not democrats, where do you find the farmers and slapping at them, and saying they were lacking in loyalty to the democratic party and principles that make good gov-ernment. I was sorry to hear the words as they came from his mouth, from his heart. They are untrue, all that is untrue. I have been all over Georgia, though this is the first time I have referred to my candidacy in a speech, and the farmers are patriotic and democratic. They will remain true to the de-

Here Mr. Calloway, of the Telegraph, inter-"The Telegraph didn't say that."

"What did it say?" demanded Mr. Northen. "Quote it, and I will say that." 'I don't recollect, exactly; you tell it."

"I told it." (Laughter.) Colonel Northen disclaimed any intention to misrepresent, and said if his friend would get the paper he would read the exact words. Then he continued:

They said all that was necessary was for Colonel Hardeman to make a speech, and I would run away. Well, I have not run yet, and I am not going to run.

The next thing that made Colonel Hardeman's candidacy necessary was that "Northen never did much." Whenever they begin to tell you what Colonel Hardeman did they go back to the dark days of reconstruction. would not take one laurel from him, but when are you going to quit? Colonel Hardeman told you he had been in the legislature seven times, speaker of the house three times and congressman twice, all based on services to democratic party. But he did not tell you he had been postmaster at Macon, based on the same services, and now holds an $1,800 office, which he does not even give up before he asks for a higher one. It does to me that the old war-horse has been feeding at the public crib so long that there isn't anything left but straw. (Laughter and applause.) He won't even let me in the Replying to what Colonel Hardeman said his action in reconstruction times, Colonel Northen said there were other men who did that, and he mentioned Linton Stephens, who was arrested, and made the grandest speech in de fense of himself that was ever delivered on the "It is not my idea," said Colonel continent. Northen, "that any one man ever saved the state. It was these men who came home when they had buried their sons and found their homes laid waste, who left their business-doctors who left their patients, ministers who left their studies, farmers who left their crops to go and cast their ballots when they were hedged about by the bayonets-thes were the men who saved the state." Speaking of the alliance, he said: "They do wrong in organizations some-times—everybody else does. I belong to the Baptist church, and they do wrong in that

Alluding to Colonel Hardeman's peroration about the people's property and their passing over into the promised land, he said:

"Yes, the dark night is almost gone, the dawn has come, they are passing over the river, but the bridge that carried them over is the famous alliance." [Applause.] Where was Colonel Hardeman when the fight was being made against the bagging trust?—My friends, he reminds me of the two friends who went deer hunting. One waited a long time on the stand, and finally a noble buck came by and he shot him. As the man stood over the quivering body of the buck his companion came up and said: 'What a fine buck we have killed.' The man who killed it turned on him and said: What the devil did you have to do with it?

[Laughter and applause.]
"Now, when my friend talks about all this prosperity the same question arises, 'What id you have to do with it?"

Speaking of Colonel Hardeman's description of the dark days of reconstruction, Colonel Northen said: "My friends that was a quarter of a century ago. Has nothing occurred since then? It reminds me of the man at the cattle show. A man asked him which was the best breed.

"'Jerseys,' said he, 'thoroughbreds.'
"But you told me threeyears ago that grades were best.'

"'Maybe I did,' said the other, 'but I have leasaed something in three years, if I haven't

"If we haven't learned something in the quarter of a century we ought to die. was looking for something fresh and I found it. Colonel Hardeman has joined the alliance

- about two weeks before he came out. [Laughter.] That's fresh—too fresh—too fresh to keep. It needs salt," [Laughter.] In his conclusion, Colonel Northen answered

Colonel Hardeman's charge that he was dividing the people.

"Why, the people were solid till Colonel Hardeman came out," said he; "I was very much gratified to find that I had no opposition. THE CONSTITUTION came out in an editorial, and I hugged it to my bosom. The Journal came out with one, "Governor Northen," and, oh, how I embraced that!" "The people were all for Northen.

'The people of Gwinnett were all for Northen a short time ago, but now I see there are a good many for Colonel Hardeman. The people have divided since he came out."

Hardeman's Rejoinder.

The second round was even more lively than the first. When Colonel Hardeman mounted the stand the second time he had some clippings from Captain Harry Brown's paper, the Alliance Farmer, and these clippings played an important part in what followed.
"Colonel Northen seeks to give you the impression that I am dividing the people," he began, "and he says they were all for Northen before I came out. He is mistaken. This county went against him. It endorsed Colonel Livingston." [Applause.]

Then Colonel Hardeman began to shoot off

alliane extracts, some of which were new to Colonel Northen.

"Nor was the gentlemen who edits the alliance paper for Mr. Northen for governor." "What's that!" said Colonel Northen.

"I will come to it," said Colonel Hardeman, and he began to read as follows from the Al-

"We believe Mr. Northen to be a man of high character; but to be a man of high character doesn't make him a good allianceman Pray, why was he so long in joining them? 'Do you say it," said Mr. Norther

"I don't say it; Mr. Brown says it," replied Colonel Hardeman. This caused a good deal Then he read again:

"While Mr. Northen claims that he is not responsible for what the papers say, I do assert that he is responsible for continued neglect of duty in failing to defend the principles of the

Here Colonel Hardeman turned solemnly toward Colonel Northen and, with an air of innocence, said:

"I didn't say it, and I ain't saying it now." At this there was great laughter and ap-"Now,' he continued, 'what was done when Colonel Northen and Colonel Livingston met with Colonel Peek at some place when it became very evident that both of them could not be governor, and they said let's leave this matter to our alliance friends."

"Where was that?" said Colonel Northen.
"Where was it, Mr. Brown?" echoed Colo-

The only talk I ever had with Mr. Northen was at Conyers," said Captain Brown.
"Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," said Colonel Hardeman with great unction.

"Colonel Livingston wanted it, but, says Colonel Northen to Colonel Livingston, wait and let me run for one year and be elected. Then I will get out of the way and you shall have no oppositions.

The property of the man and pust now for just such a democratic man mer to be governor of Georgia.

Colonel Harper in the Race.

CARROLLTON, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Hon. George W. Harper has announced for re-election to the legislature from Carroll

"I didn't say it," said Colonel Northen. Colonel Hardeman continued:

"Livingston went all through Georgia, like Saul of Tarsus, breathing vindicativeness; and when he was on the way, a light suddenly broke upon him, and Northen appeared un him and said, "Livingston, Livingston, why persecutest thou me? Go up to Atlanta, and there they will tell thee what to do," and he went up to Atlanta. Now Mr. Northen has put himself right upon the platform of Damon and Pythias. God bless us.'

"Now this thing was settled." "Where?" said Colonel Northen. "Somewhere. Northen was not there, Livingston was not there, but it was settled somewhere, and Peek was to withdraw from the race for congress. Livingston must be provided for.

'Now, I tell you why I am a candidate. When the offices were parceled out this way I thought it was time for some one to comout to represent the whole people. Colonel Hardeman charged that all the leaders of the alliance were after office, and when the leaders got in, the alliance would be tied outside St. Peter's gate."

Here was a spirited interruption by Alliance Lecturer Beck. "Here is one," said he, "who is not after

"Why, my dear sir," said Colonel Harde man, "you are lecturer for the alliance and I am informed you are laying plans to run for

Mr. Beck denied it.

Then came a quick clap of thunder, "Excuse me," said Colonel Hardemen, "I meant prominent alliancemen."

At this there was an uproar of laughter and for a moment Mr. Beck's voice was drowned, but finally he made himself heard. "I may not be very prominent," he said, "but you said all the officials of the alliance were after office, and I tell you I am not.' "I didn't say all the officials," said Colonel Hardeman. "He didn't say it," cried Colonel Simmons. "That would be impossible, for in some places they are nearly all officials."

Captain Brown's Statement. When Colonel Hardeman got through Captain Brown stated that there was no trade or bargain in the conference Colonel Hardeman had alluded to. It was simply that a few friends concluded they didn't want to see two brethren run against each other, and they had consultation to prevent it. If they didn't have a right to do that he didn't see what right they had."

The county seems certain to go for Northen. The joint discussion as a thing apart from the election, was one of the most interesting that has occurred these many campaigns. W. G. COOPER.

A Foregone Conclusion. That's what Hon. W. T. Smith, of Gwinnett, called it before Colonel Hardeman left Atlanta for Lawrenceville.

"In the first place," said Mr. Smith, "it s perhaps the strongest alliance county in the state and before Hardeman announced the county was safely pledged to Northen.

"In the second place, the alliance machinery of the state has been concentrated there for a week. A house-to-house canvass has been made in Northen's terest, and his following cemented until it is simply impossible to overcome it between d Saturday.

"In the third place, no sort of canvas has been made in Colonel Hardeman's interest. Even the short while left for work, since the time he announced, has not been improved by his friends, for the county was conceded to Northen, the alliance candidate, no matter who came out.

"So, no matter what may be the result of that joint debate, it is a foregone conclusion that the county will go against him.

"The alliance controls the county, and the alliance can't be affected by that speech, no matter what Hardeman has to say, for the simple fact that they won't go to hear him.

"If Hardeman had announced when Northen did, giving his friends time for an active canvass, and speaking himself in time for the speech to have effect, he would have carried Gwinnett. "But for him to carry it now would be turn ing the Dutch out of Holland on five minutes notice. It's a stocked hand he is playing against in Gwinnett-an inevitable result so "I shall cast my own vote for him as tribute to democracy and his manhood."

To Meet Again in Newnan. NEWNAN, Ga., June 20 .- [Special.]-Hon Tom Hardeman has made an appointment to speak in Newnan on Thursday next, the 26th instant, and Mr. Northen is expected to meet him and join in a discussion of the issues involved in the gubernatorial campaign. Delegates will be selected on Saturday following.

THE NORTHEN CAMPAIGN.

The Feeling Given Out From His Head quarters.

SPARTA, Ga., June 20 .- [Special.]-The opening days' of the Northen campaign for governorship have been truly exciting, and horoughly satisfactory to his friends.

The effect of Colonel Hardeman's announce ment, thus far, has been to bring Northen's friends to the front, and to make his strength daily more and more apparent.

The faith and confidence of the democratic masses of the state in him have been intensifying for many weeks, until his nomination is nov a certainty, and requires only the actions of the county conventions to materialize. Day by day the mail brings to him and his friends here the most cheering words from mountain to seaboard, the most unquestionable assur ance of his growing favor with the people. WORDS OF CHEER.

The best men in the state of every station calling and avocation are rallying to his standard, and offering their services in any capacity in which they can further his cause The devotion of his old pupils to him, and the active stand they are taking for him, are an inspiration truly, and will be felt throughout Georgia as one of the most potent factors in campaign. Such words as these come by the campaign. Such words as these come by the score by every mail: "I am for you, heart and soul." "My county is unquestionably for you." "Give your work to counties that are doubtful. We are solid for you." "Our people have undergone no change, and no can-didate could change them from Northen."

Such expressions show the inevitable drift

THE NORTHEN CLUB AT WORK. The Northen club here is actively at work and will be felt as an active agency throughout the campaign. Everything is solid for Northen in Hancock county; his thorough cordial endorsemen by his countrymen and neighbors is a tribute to his ability, purity and worth more valuable than any governorship Hon. Seaborn Reese, chairman of the Northe club, has at his back any amount of earnes

The inevitable drift of things is toward The inevitable drift of things is toward Northen's nomination by an overwhelming majority. He is a representative native Georgian, with broad liberal views, with no trace of narrowness or bitterness, and filled with intense zeal for the protection and upbuilding of every resource, industry and enterprise of this great and growing state. It is not to be mistaken that there is a peculiar demand just now for just such a democratic farmer to be governor of Georgia.

county. Mr. Harper has represented the county for the two last terms, and it is pretty sure that the alliance of the county will give him their hearty endorsement, which will in-sure his re-election.

HON. JOHN L. HALL

May be Presented for the Senate by Butts County.

GRIFFIN, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—It is not improbable that the Hon. John I. Hall will return to the state senate from this district. That is, if Judge Hall desires to return. turn. By the rotation system, Butts county is entitled to name the senator, and information from that section indicates that the judge will be the man presented by the Butts delegation to the nominating convention. Several prominent men from Butts have been in the city for the past two days, and each expresses the belief that Butts will follow the example of Forsyth county of a few years ago when she honored Judge James S Boynton with her nomination, and pre-sent the name of John I. Hall as the choice sent the name of John I. Hair as the choice of Butts county in the approaching election.

Judge Hall being a former citizen of the county, and being thus endeared to them, makes the possibilities of such a probability all the more probable.

In the event such a deal is made, Hon. John I. Hall will make a formidable candidate for president of the senate.

The Situation in Warren. Norwood, Ga., June 20.—(Special.)—The democrats of Warren county meet in mass meeting tomorrow, at 10 o'clock, by call of the chairman of the democratic committee, to decide whether the county shall nominate by primary or mass meeting, and the transaction of all other business that may properly come before the body. Primaries will be adopted.

Rev. J. R. Pate declared himself yesterday as candidate for the legislature, subject to the democratic nomination. Judge O. H. Ham, president of the county alliance, has made no formal announcement as yet, but will be in the field.

THE PLAYFUL DYNAMITE

Which Sends Two Negroes on a Temporary Excursion.

Columbus, Ga., June 20.—[Special:]—An explosion of dynamite at the city mills this morning came very near resulting in the killing of two negroes, George Powell and Will Anderson. For several days a squad of hands, in charge of Mr. Hugh O'Pry, have been blasting rock from the river to be used in the erection of the new mill. Yesterday evening a dynamite cartridge was placed as evening a dynamite cartridge. day evening a dynamite cartridge was placed in one of the holes drilled in the rock, and left in one of the holes drilled in the rock, and left partially covered with water and sand. Mr. O'Pry told the negroes to keep away from it; but this morning, about 6 o'clock, these two negroes commenced to drill in this same rock, and struck the cartridges. The result was an explosion that knocked Will Anderson and George Powell down, and scarred them upterribly. Will Anderson was knocked senseless, and fell in the river. Fortunately, the water was not deep, and he was pulled out. George Powell was badly scarred about the Lead and arms. Dr. Hurt was sent for and pronounced them seriously, but not fatally hurt. Anderson is still insensible.

MANY TIMES A MURDERER. A Noted Criminal Confined in Randolph

CUTHBERT, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—
Marshal Westbrook, of Albany, arrived this evening at 3 o'clock, bringing with him the most noted criminal Randolph county has had since the war, in the person of Sam Snelling, colored. Snelling is guilty of murdering two colored. Snelling is guilty of murdering two people in this county, shooting two or three others, and other serious crimes. He was readily recognized and owned up to the whole affair. A large crowd met the train, and escorted the prisoner to jail. Tonight a guard has been placed around the jail, but no effort will be made to rob the law of its majesty.

Browning Was Acquitted.

MOUNT VERNON, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—
The April adjourned term of the superior court of this county has become a thing of the past. Judge Guerry, of the Patula circuit, presided, though Judge Roberts, our most efficient judge, was present to attend to business other than his disqualified cases, to try which Judge Guerry came here. A vast amount of business was dispatched, and Judge Guerry won the hearts of the people by his prompt, impartial and able management of the cases on the docket. The Browning-Nash murder case was disposed of, Browning being acquitted. Browning Was Acquitted.

The Firemen's Tournament. The Firemen's Tournament.

MARIETTA, Ga., June 20.—Special.—The grand firemen's tournament, to be held in this city June 25th and 26th, promises to be red-letter days for Marietta. Everything possible will be done by our boys to royally entertain the visiting companies from different parts of the state. A list of prizes, with rules and regulations governing the races, have been adopted.

A Safe Guard.

A Safe Guard.

Few people living in a malarial country but occasionally need a vigorous tonic, either to okeep off the malarial feeling or else to cure the disease if it once gets into the system. There is no more uncomfortable disease that affects humanity than chills and fever. It drives away energy and ambition. It makes one feel sick and mean all over. A safe guard against the disease and a sure cuse is Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John-Bull, of Louisville, Ky. A single bottle will do for an entire family. It is far better than quinine, as no derangement of the tem ever follows its use. The use of quinine causes a buzzing in the ears, dizzy sensations, nausea and sometimes even convulsions and paralysis. Use Smith's Tonic Syrup and all such danger is avoided. In fact it has all the good medicinal qualities of quinine with none of its evil nature.

About 11:30 o'clock this morning, when about fifty miles from Baltimore, and near Childs, Cecil county, the main sods on both sides of the locomotive broke. One-of the rods was forced through the cab of the engine, striking Fireman John McNamara with such force as to kill him instantly. The accident also caused the sleepers to leave the track and roll over the embankment, resulting in fatal injury to Charles Ackenheil, chief engineer of the Staten Island Rapid Transit company, who died before reaching Philadelphia, and severely wounding of the others mentioned above. "We were just a few minutes past Childs when the accident occurred. Fireman Mc-Namara was sitting on his box looking out of Namara was sitting on his box looking out of the window. I was not paying much attention to him, but was busy watching the engine and looking ahead. All of a sudden I heard a racket. I looked and saw that his side of the box had been carried away. Quiek as a flash I leaped down behind the firebox, out of danger. Hardly was I in a crouching position, when the box on my side of the engine was torn off and thrown high in the air. The engine stopped dead, and the cars were thrown off the track and down the embankment, amid the shouts and screams of the passengers. I knew what had caused the accident as soon as the fireman's side of the engine was carried away. I got out and made an examination, and saw that the main rods on both fly-wheels had broken the main rod, or bar, that connects the drive-wheels on Jack's side. It had broken first on the fireman's side of the engine, near the front wheel. wheels on Jack's side. It had broken first on the fireman's side of the engine, near the front wheel. The wheel continued in motion and swung the broken bar around with it. It smashed through poor McNamara's side, and immediately killed him. Then my bar broke and tore away my side of the engine. If I had not been back of the fire-box, I would not be talking to you now, but would be a dead man. When the cab was torn away, it was thrown into the air, and pleces were scattered over the top of cars and all along the side of the track. The train jumped the track, and rolled down an embankment. Then came a fight to rescue those who were caught in the fight to rescue those who were caught in the Senator Plumb today reported the post-office appropriation bill from the senate appropriation committee. It appropriates $72,461,699—an increase of $473,000 over the amounts appropriated by the bill as it passed the house. The changes are an increase of $50,000 for detection and prosecution of mail depredation; an increase of $390,000 for compensation of post-office clerks; a decrease of $15,000 for the purchase of mail locks and keys, and an increase of $48,000 for the transportation of an increase of $48,000 for the transportation of foreign mails. This last increase is of import-ance, as it will, if incorporated into law, mark a departure in the postal policy of the country A provision in the bill authorizes the post-master general to expend this $48,000 in cover-ing one-half the cost of transportation, com-pensation and expenses of clerks to be em-ployed on mails in transit on steamships be-tween the United States and other countries in the international postal union. It has been recommended from time to time that the nails should be assorted on ocean steamship the same as they are now assorted on railway postal cars, in order to save time in the deliv-ery of mails; but heretofore the proposition has not received much attention on the part

BEBEL'S ADVICE.

The Socialist Leader Says the Recent Strikes Were Wrong.

Were Wrong.

Berrlin, June 20.—The great socialist leader, Bebel, today spoke strongly against useless strikes. He said that many errors in the matter of strikes had recently been comitted throughout Germany. A majority of his colleagues, intoxicated by the result of the elections, believed they could do what they liked with the middle class. It was a mistake. Leaders must act with caution. Adverting to the boycott recently placed on Bavarian beer brewed in Berlin, he said the weapon of the boycott was abused, and that leaders of working men were incompetent.

The meeting was not in accord with Bebel, and voted a want of confidence in the Berlinger Volksblatt, because that paper has taken Bebel's view of strikes. It was decided, however, to remove the boycott on Bavarian beer, the breweries having arranged a compromise.

More Switchmen Strike.

CLEVELAND, O., June 20.—Switchmen on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railway, the Erie railroad and Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad, reported to their yardmaster this morning and returned to work at what is known as Lake Shore wages. The Nickel Plate, Valley railway, Cleveland, Canton and Southern and Pennsylvania companies' yardmen are still out, and express a determination to stay out until they are granted at least ten hours for a day's work at the Lake Shore scale for twelve hours' work.

How Is Your Blood

If you feel that your blood is not in good on, do not lose time and take the risk of serious illness by taking nostrums, but go to the point at once by using S. S. S. This is the remedy which you need, and don't be persuaded to take any of the so-called blood medicines, because they are cheap, or because the druggist makes a few cents more per bottle.

An Old Sore Healed.

I had a painful, annoying sore on my leg, near the knee, that troubled me for over two years. I tried various remedies, but the sore, instead of healing up, continued to grow larger, and to cause me more pain until I began to look for a crutch. Through the advice of a friend, who was cured'of a similar trouble, I took S. S. S., and in a few weeks was cured entirely. The sore healed up, and there is not even a scar left to mark the place.

Good Advice.

Several years ago I was covered with boils to such an extent that my life was a misery. After trying a number of other remedies without any benefit, I was advised by a wholesale druggist at Columbus to try S. S. S. (Swift's Specific). One bottle of S. S. S. cured me entirely. I have not had a boil since. To those afflicted with boils or skin eruptions, I give the same advice my wholesale druggist gave me-take S. S. S.

A Permanent Cure.

For years I was troubled with the most maignant type of chronic blood trouble. After rying various other remedies, without getting any benefit, I was induced, by Joe Schell, a barber, who has since moved to St. Louis, and who was cured by Swift's Specific of a constiutional blood trouble, to take S. S. S. A few bottles cured me permanently. I also consider S. S. S. the best tonic I ever saw. While taking it my weight increased and my health improved in every way. I have recommended S. S.S. to several friends, and in every case thwere satisfied with the results. S. A. WRIGHT, Midway, Pa.

A PUBLIC QUESTION?

Where Was R. T. Nesbitt in the Dark Hour of Reconstruction? from the Conyers Solid South. "It was a dark hour in Georgia's history.

"The armies of the union had burned her cities and destroyed her property. The federal govern-ment had disfranchised our people, elevated our our people, elevated our laves to the rights and privileges of citizenship, supplanted civil jurisdiction with military rule, removed judges from their benches and juries from their boxes. Civil officers were disrobed of their authority, and the disrobed of their authority, and people subjected to martial law, states were of verted into military districts, commanding get als gave laws to the people, the Freedmen's but regulated labor contracts, while armed sold entered our legislative halls and seated men officers who were not even members of the hot over which they presided. Personal liberty trampled under foot, while terror brooded every altar and homestead."

over which they presided. Personal liberty was trampled under foot, while terror brooded over every altar and homestead."

The above extract from the letter of that old democratic veteran, Tom Hardeman, will stir the blood of every true Georgian while memory shall last. It was a dark hour in Georgia's history, and the blackest page is that on which are recorded the names of the very few of her sons who bent the pregnant hinges of the knee before her oupressors that thrift might follow fawning. It is hard to believe that men who deserted their people in that dark hour should now have effrontery to ask honorable recognition at their hands. It is true that twenty-five years have sped quickly by, but the insuit heaped upon the people of the state by the petty agents of the Freedmen's bureau, the most obnoxious of all the instruments concorted by republican malice through which to vent their hais, are still fresh in the menory of all true Georgians. Now here comes from south Georgia a report, and there seems to be little or no doubt as to its truth, that while the masses of the people were groaning under the oppression of federal tyranny, R. T. Nesbitt, of the county of Cobb, a candidate before the democratic convention to be held in August for the position of commissioner of agriculture, was safely eneconced in one of the Freedmen's bureau drawers, drawing a fat salary and "protecting the poor nigger from rebel (?) cruelty."

If this be true, the fact that he deserted that efty."

If this be true, the fact that he deserted that brave band of democrats in the legislature of 1870 in their fight against the adoption of the fittenth amendment is fully explained.

This report is gaining circulation, and Mr. Neshit should hasten to correct it, if not true, for the democrats of Georgia are slow to reward that traitors of those dark days with positions of honer and trust.

It is Incomplete, and Absolutely Untrust-worthy. The General News of the Central City Gathered.

MACON, Ga., June 20 .- [Special.]-The census matter is still agitating the people.

The troubles grow more serious daily, and it is now evident that many hundreds of Macon's population are not on the census reports.

The enumerators have unquestionably made he worst job in taking Macon's census ever on record. On every hand are springing up families whom he has never visited, and even whole blocks are reported entirely overlooked. The people have now become thoroughly aroused and do not propose that Macon shall go into the next census report with such a representation. The funny part of the whole affair is the modest request of Supervisor Bethune that these several hundred names be sent to parties wholly unauthorized to take the census. The people will hardly do this without a reasonable compensation for their services, and they think the request is absurd.

The people are universally of the opinion that the whole reports are rotten and unreliable from the beginning, and they do not care to have the matter smoothed over by the addition of a few score of names, simply to shield negligent and unreliable enumerators.

The morning paper published in this city backs up Supervisor Bethune in his de-mand that the people gnish taking their own census. It appears to be willing that a few more names should be added to the reports and thenbe sent in. The reports made by such negligent and un-reliable enumerators, as some of them have proven to be, cannot be depended upon and the idea of them being sent in with even a large addition of names appears to be exceedingly distasteful. The board of trade has taken action in the matter and this afternoon published the fol-lowing card for a meeting to take place Mon-

THE BIBB GRAND JURY. They do Good Work and Stir Things Up

They do Good Work and Stir Things Up Considerably.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The grand jury which adjourned yesterday afternoon, came into court this morning and read their presentments. It was one of the most sound documents ever read by any grand jury in the state. The jury took up the county chain-gang system, and denounced, in the strongest terms, the manner in which it is conducted. They warmly advocated the separation of women and the milder class of convicts from the more hardened and experienced, and hoped that the convicts would be treated like human beings, instead of prutes.

A RAP AT THE GAMBLERS.

The jury has been unusually careful in dealing with the gamblers and it is a notable fact that those guilty have found it convenient to take in grip since the jury begun its work. The jury recommended, that the county's representatives in the next legislature frame and have passed a bill giving the policemen of Macon power to enter and arrest the keepers and frequenters of gambling-houses.

They were informed that there were now sixteen in full blast in Macon, but which could not be touched under the present arrangement of things.

IN MACON COURTS.

What Was Done in These Tribunals Yesterday.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Horace Smith, a negro, pleaded guilty in the superior court, this morning, of larceny from the house. He was given three months on the chaingang, without alternative.

Ed Richards, alias Frank Coleman, who was tried yesterday on the charge of burglary, was found guilty of larceny from the house, and was today fined $50 and costs or sentenced to six months on the chaingang.

costs or sentenced to six months on the chaingang.

Martin Brunson, a negro, is being stried today on the charge of larceny from the person. His case has occupied the attention of the court throughout the day.

J. B. Williams, proprietor of the Commercial hotel and bar, pleaded guilty today to keeping a tippling-house open on the Sabbath.

It is understood the grand jury found true bills against a number of Macon saloon-keepers, and they will all be made to suffer at this term of court.

Ed Ally, a young white fellow, who has served in the chain-gang almost from term of court.

Ed Ally, a young white fellow, who has served in the chain-gang almost from the time he was able to work, and who seems to have a fondness for the life, was in court this merning on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. Ally forged an order on Mix & Everitt, of this city, for four pairs of shoes, signing the name of Mr. McKee, the chain-gang boss, thereto.

He almost jumped at the chance to plead guilty, and seemed pained when told that he could only remain on the gang two years for the offense. Alley seems to prefer the life of a convict to any other, and for a number of years has done no other work, committing some virue as fast as he is released.

A MACON ENTERPRISE

Opens Today With a Flourish of Trumpets and a Grand Street Parade.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The opening of the immense brewery, recently built by Tom Tracy, Macon's enterprising young capitalist, was a grand event. At about 11 o'clock a grand street parade, in which a band of over twenty pieces, seated on an immense band wagon, and all the wagons of the brewery, took part. These wagons are decidedly the most beautiful ever seen in Macon, and the horses drawing them are among the finest in the south. From 11 o'clock until 6 o'clock this afternoon the immense buildings of the company were packed with people to witness the great opening and partake of the beer.

It was a splendid success, and today another large industry is opened in Macon. MACON REAL ESTATE MEN.

They Hold a Meeting to Discuss the Situation.

MACON, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Macon real estate agents held a very satisfactory meeting yesterday evening at the office of Messrs. Dancan & Camel. They met to discuss the situation, and get up a black list for the next season.

The importance of the real estate business in Macon is shown in the fact that the membership of the organization has increased from six last year to thirteen.

The officers elected for the following year are: George B. Turpin, president; George W. Duncau, vice-president; L. J. Anderson, secretary and treasurer: executive committee—R'S. Collins, J. L. Harris, George W. Duncan.

THEY WANT A SCHOOL.

Residents of Tatnall Square Meet to Take Ac-

MACON, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Ameeting of the residents of Tatnall square was held last night at the residence of Mr. E. S. Wilson to discuss the school situation in that neighborhood. The meeting was largely attended, and the discussion was participated in by nearly every one present.

Superintendent Zetler, who was on hand by invitation, informed the meeting that it had been the custom for private money to farnish a school room for the public schools, and in only one instance had the board of education expended the funds in their possession to provide buildings for the schools.

Those present thought this was very unjust, requiring the people to be taxed twice for the same purpose.

It was inclined the sensited transfer of the sensited was really decided transfer.

same purpose.

It was finally decided to appoint a committee to meet the board and ascertain what amount the board would appropriate for a school-house, provided the people would furnish a lot. It is a fact not generally known that, of the forty buildings used by the board of education, they hold titles to but five of them.

A Macon Young Man Has This Stolen From Him.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Mr. Harry Fricke, a clerk at Bennis's bar, on Mulberry street, is about $140 out of pocket today. Fricke rooms on Second street, and in his trunk he had $140 in money. The key to the trunk was in the bed with him, and the money was in the trunk. His door was locked from the inside when he returned last night and this morning was just as he left it. Notwithstanding all this the $140 in his trunk was found missing this morning, and it is evident that he was robbed during the night. Fricke's room-mate is a young man named Rosenthal, and it seems that they both slept so soundly that neither of them heard the thief. The police are at work on the case.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—This was a great day with the Southern Cadets. At 2 o'clock this afternoon they left over the Georgia Southern road for Beech Haven, where they picnicked. About 300 invited friends accompanied the boys, and four coaches were filled with the beauty and chivalry of Macon. The entire afternoon and evening until ten o'clock was spent at Beech Haven, the excursion arriving back at home slightly after eleven o'clock tonight. The occasion was one of the most enjoyable of the season. Yesterday.

Macon, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The keeper of the river bridge, Paul Henry, died this morning. He was about sixty years of age, and had served as bridge-keeper for a long time. He was well-known and liked by many. His death was caused from heart disease. He will be buried tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's church.

AN EXPLOSION OF POWDER

Awakes the People to Discover the Existence of a Fire.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—An incendiary's hand sent over $2,000 worth of property up in smoke at Midway, ten miles below here, last night. The store-house and contents and a residence belonging to J. T. Farrell were consumed at about 2 o'clock. The store-house was almost burned to the ground before anything was known of the fire, and not until the flames reached a keg of powder were the neighbors aroused. The explosion shook the neighborhood up, and awoke people in the city, but too late to check the flames. Those who reached the burning building first say that the windows were open and there was They dwelt at length on the free pass question, and denounced, most plainly, the custom of taking free passes by legislators and other public officers. They asked what would the people think if the railroad corporations should keep representatives at the capticl to provide the legislators with money, instead of passes to come and go when and where they will.

The jury was, beyond a doubt, one of the most able and faithful body of men that has ever served in that capacity in Bibb.

A Nine-Year-Old Boy Has a Singular

A Nine-Year-Old Boy Has a Singular Experience.

CEDAE SPRINGS, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—
On yesterday evening about 3 o'clock, a nine-year-old son of K. W. Goldins, of this place, was struck by lightning. His father sent him, with a younger brother, about 300 yards from the house to lead the horses to the pasture. Just as they were returning a thunder cloud was approaching. The older brother was a little ahead, and had got on the fence. The stroke came and knocked him off the fence, tearing open two rails on the fence, scorching his clothes and blistering his whole right side and arm, burning all the hair off his legs, and even bursting open the legs of his pantaloons. The Work of the Bolt.

SAYANNAH, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—A bolt of lightning topped off the laurel tree that cast its umbrage over the Citizen's bank, corner Drayton and Bryan streets, at a few minutes after 2 o'clock this afternoon. The electric fluid enveloped the bank and the tenants of the building in an amber sheet, and disquieted a number of people.

THE BASEBALL SEASON

Seems to Have Taken a Start in Madison Seems to Have Taken a Start in Madison.

Madison, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The baseball season has opened here with a series of three games between Madison and Oxford. The game yesterday was a good one, and resulted in a score of 3 to 2 in favor of Oxford. This morning the clubs met on the diamond, and a large crowd was in the grand stand to witness a splendid game, resulting in a score of 2 to 0 in favor of Madison. This afternoon all the stores in Modison closed and the people turned out en masse to see our boys down the visitors on a score of 14 to 3. Madison is enthusiastic over the result. Our battery for the first two games was Snider and Bearden, and for the last games was Albert Foster and Bearden. We play Atlanta next week on our diamond.

TWIGGS AND WATSON.

THE WARLIKE CORRESPONDENCE

A Newspaper Article Leads to a Couple of Intemperate Speeches, and Finally to a Serious Correspondence.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—Below is the full correspondence between Judge Twiggs and Mr. Watson, which will be published in tomorrow's Chronicle and was published in this evening's News.

Friends of both gentlemen are very apprehensive about the result of it, as it is declared by followers of the code that a street fight is bound to result whenever they meet.

The following is the correspondence in full:

The following is the correspondence in full:

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 16, 1890.—Dear Sir: My attention has today been drawn to a communication in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, of the 15th instant, from which I quote the following: "Judge Twiggs's barbecue at Waynesboro was simply the vaporing of a soured outlaw, who is so accustomed to abusing everything and everybody that the restraints of truth have no power over him."

The language above quoted is offensive on its face, and seems to be intended to convey an insult. I, therefore, request at your hands an explanation of the same. This will be handed you by my friend, Mr. Eugene F. Verdery. Respectfully,

Hon. Thomas E. Watson, Thompson, Ga.

Hon. H. D. D. Twiggs. Dear Sir: Your communication, asking for an explanation of the words quoted, was handed me by Mr. Eugene F. Verdery yesterday.

The language is this: "Judge Twiggs's harangue at Waynesboro was simply the vaporing of a soured outlaw, who is so accustomed to abusing everything and everybody that the restraints of truth have no power over him."

You publicly charged me with writing the News and Courier's article, and signing another man's name to it. Your assertion of the contents of that article, as reported in the newspapers, is also at variance with the facts. As long as your accusations remain, my response must be the same as in the language quoted.

Let me add further that I am no duellist. Whether this position be taken from principle or from want of courage, you can form your own opinion, and make such experiments to verify sit as your judgment may dictate. Respectfully, Thomas E. Watson.

June 18, 1890.

This will be handed you by my friend, Major C. E. McGregor.

This will be handed you by my friend, Major C. E. McGregor.

Augusta, Ga., June 19, 1890.—Dear Sir: I am, this morning, at the hands of Major Charles E. McGregor, in receipt of your communication of yesterday, in which, in accordance with my request, you furnish the reasons for employing the offensive language which appeared in The Ar-LANTA CONSTITUTION of the 18th instant.

You say that I publicly charged you with writing the News and Courier article and signing another man's name to it. You say, second, that my assertion of the contents of that article (as reported in the newspapers) is also at variance with the facts. In reply I desire to say that I did not, in my speech or elsewhere, charge you with having signed another's name to the article. Indeed, I knew to the contrary, and there is nothing to be found in the Waynesboro correspondent's report of my speech (which I have again today carefully read) which at all warrants even any such inference. My remarks were in exact accordance with the facts as I understood them, and still understand them. I said that you were the author and writer of the News and Courier's letter, and upon it being called for, I furnished and received a letter, now in my possession, containing a full admission of Mr. Hyams to this effect. I knew that Mr. Hyams, in sending this letter to the News and Courier, adopted and signed it as his own, and, therefore, the very point which I was seeking to make was that, on its face, the letter purported to have been written by Mr. Hyams, because it was signed by him, but had been furnished by You to him, which you now admit.

Indeed, since the delivery of my speech at Waynesdore, I have been assigned by the promote of the content of the promote of th when, in point of fact, it was not written by him, but had been furnished by you to him, which you now admit.

Indeed, since the delivery of my speech at Waynesboro, I have been assured that the manuscript is in your own handwriting. Of course the opening and concluding lines of the Hyams's letter are his own, as they refer to general and local matters.!

I deem it hardly necessary to comment upon your second reason, to-wit, that my assertion of the contents of the News and Courier article (as reported in the newspapers) is also at variance with the facts. Except to say that I read this article in full to the audience, I could not have wished, or have intended to wish it, as to its contents, as the article spoke for itself.!

Assuming, therefore, that you have been perfectly frank and candid in stating the real reasons for your offensive remarks, I take it for granted, since there was no foundation for them, that you will no longer hesitate to withdraw them, and I herewith request that you will do so. Respectfully,

Ho. D. Twiggs: Dear Sir—I regard your communication, just handed me, as a practical evasion of the issue, and I have no further reply to make. Respectfully, Thomas E. Watson.

This will be handed you by Major C. E. McGregor.

The following letter was, on last evening, about dark, handed by me to Major McGregor, who reserved the right, after reading it, of declining to deliver the same. The letter was returned to me this morning, I having gone to the sand hills shortly after handing Major McGregor.

VI.

Augusta, Ga., June 19, 1890.—Thomas E. Watson, Sir: On the 19th in-tant I addressed you a communication, couched in courteous and respectful language, asking an explanation of the following paragraph, which appeared in The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION of the 15th instant over your signature:

LANTA CONSTITUTION of the 15th instant over your signature:
"Judge Twiggs' barbecue at Waynesboro was simply the vaporing of a soured outlaw, who is so accustomed to abusing everybody and everything that the restraints of truth have no power over him."

so accustomed to abusing everybody and everything that the restraints of truth have no power over him."

In reply to this letter you furnish certain reasons which controlled you in making this irrelevant and uncalled-for attack upon me, which reasons, in point of fact, were not only without foundation; but were purely imaginary on your part, as the report of my speech furnished you was no plausible pretext for the meaningless words employed by you solely for the purpose of giving offense. You also make haste to say in this letter that "you are no duellist"! that whether your position in this respect be taken from principle or from want obcourage, I can form my own opinion, and make such experiments to verify it as my judgment may dietate." In my reply to this note, without noticing the latter portion, which boasts of courage which had not been impagned, I again, in most courteous terms, distinctly denied and repudiated the fact that I made the charges which formed the basis of your attack upon me, and which you say was the sole canse for making it.

In your letter before me you refuse to accept my denial, and characterize the same as an evasion of this issue, and decline to make the amende which was demanded of you by all laws of honorable dealing among gentlemen.

In view of your recent statement that you do not hold yourself amenable to those usages requiring satisfaction among gentlemen, I refrain from indulging in the empty form of sending you a challenge.

In your intimation that I may test your courage anywhere except upon the field of honor, you imply willingness to meet any attack I may make upon you on the street or other places of resort, where the lives of innocent men and women may be endangered. This willingness may be safely expressed, for I shall not descend to the level of a street brawler, but will leave you to the contempt which you deserve, and to the judgment of a discriminating public.

PALATKA, Fla., June 20.—Charles H. Pratt, editor of the Evening Herald, assaulted J. Russell Kennedy, editor of the Times, today with a heavy cane, which he broke into splinters over his victim's head. Kennedy closed in on him and while the pair were locked in ferocious embrace, each trying to draw weapons from their pockets, the bystanders and police interfered and separated them. The trouble grew out of an article in the Times. Kennedy's wounds are not dangerous, and lawsuits are likely to follow.

A Chicago Bank Closed.

Chicago, June 20.—The Park National bank, of this city, closed its doors this morning and a crowd of depositors now surround its place of business. The causes of failure are not yet known. A notice pasted on the door says it is in charge of J. D. Sturgiss, national bank examiner. Charles P. Packard is its president. It has been organized only a few years. Its stock sold at par yesterday. No statement of assets or liabilities is obtainable at this writing.

The failure was not unexpected in banking circles. Its president made considerable money, and took charge of the bank without, it is said, sufficient knowledge of banking. The result was that its lgan department was understood to be conducted less strictly than conservative bankers considered necessary, with the result of getting rather a poor line of paper. The Entombed Miners Not |Yet Reached But Work is Progressing. DUNBAR, Pa., June 20.—It is the expecta-tion of most of the miners who are working for the rescue of their imprisoned comrades, that the entry within which they are will be holds that some of the men are alive, though no more rappings have been reported. All preparations have been made to take care of the men if they are brought out alive, and three physicians are on the grounds ready for service at a moment's notice. The failure to reach the men has caused general disappointment, and hope is once more giving way to despair.

SETTLING THE RACE PROBLEM. Two Colored Men Draw Pistols in

Columbia, S. C., June 20.—[Special.]—On Wednesday night, a religious meeting was held in a negro church in Lancaster county. While in church, two young men, Andrew Porter and Newton Heath, aged twenty-one and eighteen respectively, began teasing each other about their relative color, each charging the other with having the blackest skin. Both finally lost their tempers, and when near the church door drew pistols and fired at each other at short range. Porter was shot through the heart. Heath has been arrested.

The Farmers' Convention.

Indianapolis, June 20.—About two hundred farmers, members of the alliance and other farmers' organizations of the state, met yesterday and organized a state league for political purposes. An executive committee of one member from each county was chosen. Resolutions denouncing the liquor traffic and trusts; desired government, loans on the plan of Senator Stanford's bill: favor the Butterworth anti-option bill; favor free coinage; pledge support to such party as will meminate farmers for congress and discussed a number of purely lecal and state questions. "A Boy Fund." The editor of the "Young Folks" de partment of THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION has received a letter signed "Florida Boy," which reads as follows:

You speak of an Elephant fund. Why not get up a boy fund? I am a boy sixteen years old, and very anxious indeed to attend college, but I have not the money. It would take $200 to attend the college near this place, and I hope the readers of THE CONSTITUTION will assist a boy to try to make something of himself.

"Florida Boy" is evidently in carnest, as he sends his name and address. Naturally we sympathize with him, and it is possible that some of our readers will volunteer their assistance. But the suggestion concerning a boy fund is somewhat out of order. Our correspondent should first seek assistance among his home people, his friends and neighbors, and he would do still better to go to work for a couple of years and earn the needed $200. He is only sixteen and he can afford to wait awhile before he goes to

It may be that the Florida youth has not thought the matter over in all its bearings. For his encouragement, we have no hesitation in saying that if he is determined to get an education he will do it. If he cannot borrow the money he will go to work and earn it. The latter way is the best, but if any of our readers feel disposed to help the young Floridian along, it will afford us pleasure to place them in communication

A Plain Talk About Banks.

The national banking system was originated as a war measure to save the country, and it has been continued because it plays into the hands of the money devils, and oppresses the people.

While these banks continue to increase in number there is a steady contraction in the volume of their circulation. As government bonds are canceled the note circulation of the national banks decreases. Last year this contraction amounted to $37,000,000. Naturally this has caused such a fall in prices as to embarrass the trading and producing classes. To put it plainly, it has robbed the industrious of the fruits of their labors. The farmers find that they get nothing for their crops, while land values are going down, and mortgages are growing birrer and harder to pay off.

years ago, with a population of 50,000,000, and $43,000,000,000 worth of projectly, our outstanding money was $1,730, Now, with a population of nearly 65,000,000, and property worth $60,000,000, 000, the amount of money is only $1,426, 104,241. In other words, our money decreases a our population increases.

There is no sound financial wisdom in this. It is a volicy devised by the rich few the creditor class, to make a dollar harder to get, and worth more when it pays a debt than when the debt was contracted. In plain English this is robbery.

All this explains why the people are asking for sub-treasuries, free-silver coinage and more greenbacks. Undoubtedly we must have money enough to move the wheels of trade and industry, or there will be serious trouble.

There is a sensible and safe remedy for these evils, but false teachings have led the people away from it. It is simply to restore our old state banking system, under judicious safe-guards. This country is too vast, and has too many conflicting interests to remain under the domination of Wall street. The repeal of the ten per cent tax on the circulation of state banks would cause them to be re-established, and then there would be an expansive volume of local currency. The national banks do not furnish this, and they are so hampered by the law that their loans are made on every security except the bestthe land of the farmers. Traders and speculate s can borrow money from the national banks, but the farmers, with the most solid basis of the country's wealth under their feet, cannot borrow a dollar.

If the national banks can not be remod eled, let the state banks be restored. They are an essential feature of our system of local government. They answer the needs of the people, and stand between the debtors and the Shylock class. They will afford greater relief to the country than floods of silver or a farmers' sub-treasury in every congressional district. Let us return to the old-fashioned financial policy of our fathers.

The Silver Question.

The temper of the house seems to be running a race with that of the senate in the matter of silver, and the probability is that Mr. Harrison will have to face the issue and choose between signing or vetoing a bill restoring silver to its old place in our financial

The grim reminder of Senator Edmunds that the free-coinage bill is a democratic measure had no restraining influence on the republicans, who have made a prompt and patriotic response to the pressure of public opinion. The measure is democratic to the core, though it has not formed a prominent feature of democratic platforms, and although Mr. Cleveland was inclined to take a narrow view of the issue. The republicans, in fluenced by foreign interests that have fortified themselves in Wall street, and in the financial circles of the east, surreptitiously noralized silver in 1873, and since the time the party, its leaders and its organs have been doing their level best not only to degrade the white metal, but to depreciate the silver dollars coined under the Bland

Singularly enough the democrats have never made an issue of free coinage, although the whole country has peen ripe for it several years. The party has been playing a waiting game, and there have been but two democratic papers, so far as we know, that have striven to keen the matter to the front as an issue-THE CONSTITUTION and the Courier-Journal. These papers have for three or four years been insisting on the free coinage of silver as the only solution of the financial

We observe that a great many republican organs are confident that Mr. Harrison will veto a free-coinage bill, but these organs have made their predictions in the hope that the president would not be compelled to face such a responsibility. Unless some unlooked for event happens in the house, Mr. Harrison will have to choose between the defeat of his party and his own ambitious aims, and the signing of a free-coinage measur Our opinion is that he will take his medicine like a little man, forced to it by the political conditions by which he is surrounded.

Meanwhile, the situation is unusually in teresting.

It Comes High.

High protection for protection's sake is very costly.

The masses bear the burden for the benefit of the classes. Such high protection as the McKinley bill would force upon the country strikes at the pocket of every man. As the Boston Globe puts it, one cannot sit down at a restaurant table without paying this outrageous tax. He may say that the coffee he drinks is free of duty, but the sugar he puts into it is taxed eighty-two per cent, the salt on the table is taxed thirty-food is similarly burdened. It is the same way at the stores where one buys his clothing, hardware, glass, crock-

nine per cent, and nearly every article of These taxes are collected indirectly, and this is the reason why people say so little about them. If they were collected directly -if the tax collector went to a citizen and demanded ten dollars to protect the iron and steel industries, eight dollars to protect Michigan copper, six dollars to protect the sheep-raisers of Montana and four dollars to protect the tin-plate industry, then there would be a howl, and protection would be snowed under.

And yet, whether the tax is collected directly or indirectly, it amounts to the same thing. Protection comes high, and it empties the pockets of the many to fill those of the few.

To Beat the Lodge Bill.

The people of Florida have found a way to get around a federal election law, should one be passed. The election in that state will take place in November. It will be the first election held by the new law enacted by last year's legislature.

It is described as being similar to the South Carolina law governing elections; in presidential election years eight ballot-boxes will be used, but in this year's election only six. The plan, as outlined in a dispatch, is as follows: There will be a separate box for state controller, one for a justice of the supreme court, one for state senator, one for members of the house of representatives, one for county officers, one for representatives to the national congress and one for voting on an amendment to the constitution.

By this law the national is separated from the state election. There will be ten noll. ing-places at each precinct, over which different inspectors and clerks will preside, at a comfortable distance from each other. At one of these precincts presidential electors and congressmen will be voted for, and the other will be devoted to state and county officers, the final returns to be counted and certified and kept separate from each other.

The law provides that the polling-places shall be enclosed and have an entrance a one end and an exit at the other. No one is to be allowed to speak to the voter while in the polling-place casting his vote except the inspector and clerks. The boxes are to have an opening on the side, to be not larger than sufficient to admit a single ballot, and each box is to be labeled in distinct Roman letters, showing what officers are to be voted for therein. These labels are also to be printed or written in Spanish and German when the county commissioners deem it necessary. No vote for any office other than that for which the box is designated and labeled, when found in any box, shall be counted.

If the virtuous republicans who spend their days and nights in raving over election methods in the south can devise a hallot with more red tane than this we would like to hear from them. But even these features. fair and impartial as they are, will fail to satisfy them. What they desire most is not a fair election, but a republican election; and nothing short of federal bayonets at the polls, pointed at democratic voters, will content them.

In the meantime, by the operation of this law, Florida will fortify herself against federal tyranny, and it is hoped that she will be successful in the attempt.

Halstead Defends Quay.

Editor Murat Halstead, who, in exile from his native state of Ohio, is editing a small Brooklyn paper, appears to be very much troubled in the mind about the charges made against Quay. We would not be understood as belittling Mr. Halstead. He is a very able writer and a vigorous thinker. He does not belong to the small and offensive class of republican partisans who make it their business to abuse the south. Mr. Halstead is abusive enough when occasion offers, but he is honest and generous, and that is more than can be said of any other professional republican. He is editing a Brooklyn paper ainly because he was engaged in the Foraker forgery kerflummux, though he wa thoroughly deceived and made quick and ample reparation. On the emotional side, Editor Halstend is very weak. It was through his emotions that he was led to take sides with that poor little stick. Foraker, and now we find him trying to defend that other republican fraud.

Matthew Quay. We will not say that this performance is natural and to be expected, because we do not desire to couple Mr. Halstead's name with a species of bdiousness that his sober judgment would not tolerate. We remember that at the proper moment, and in the most efficacious way, he laid Mr. Foraker and the republican party of Ohio out flat, and we be eve there is still a great deal of good and honest work in his composition.

So far as we know, Mr. Halstead has made no effort to prove that Quay is a pure and an undefiled citizen, beyond the approach of rumor and away above suspicion. He has read the charges against Quay, and he has observed, with unaffected concern, Mr.

Quay's remarkable silence. As Quay is the great republican leader, Editor Halstead thinks he ought to be defended, and he goes about it in a blunt and blundering fashion that really adds to the sting of the original charge. He goes on to compare the great republican leader with a number of democratic thieves and defaulters, and goes on to say that honesty is not in the intention nor in the act, but in the fact that nothing is missing from the Pennsylvania treasury. In other words, the defense is that although Quay may have stolen he cannot be dishonest, because whatever he took was replaced.

We are so familiar with the sarcastic style of Editor Halstead that we are bound to believe that his defense of Quay has a sinister

Miss Manola's Tights.

The million and a half people in New York are not bothering themselves about the silver bill, the federal election law, or the other issues which interest the country at large.

The New Yorkers have nothing in view but Miss Manola's tights, and just at present they are discussing nothing else.

Miss Manola is a pretty actress at the Broadway theater. She wears the most shapely and attractive tights ever seen on the stage, and her manager ordered her to be photographed in her picturesque costume At this the actress kicked. She was willing to caper before the footlights in tights, but she drew the line at having her picture taken. So the manager, the other night, meanly resorted to the device of a flash-ligh camera, and had her photographed on the fly. Then the young lady kicked more vigorously than ever, and declared her intention of appealing to the law.

It is a very interesting question. The newspapers are full of it, and most of them take sides with the actress. Miss Manola' tights, with their contents, belong to her. She has a right to exhibit them, but there is a difference between bewildering the spectators in the theater for a few moments with a glimpse of something gorgeous, and the cold, matter-of-fact reality of a photograph to be hawked about and critically examined

Undoubtedly Miss Manola is right. Fortunately for her, the chivalric New Yorker are determined to stand by her and her tights to the last. The idea of transferring such charms to a card to be sold for ten cents is an outrage. People who desire to see such a star attraction should be willing to pay the price.

A New Boston Fad.

ne of our esteemed exchanges, notably the Florida Times-Union, are likely to get into a row with the Boston people. In regard to the recent experiment with hypno tism at the Hub our Florida contemporar boldly asserts that there is "more delusion among the people of the north than among the negroes of the south."

But our contemporary is not far wrong for in this matter of hypnotism alone they have gone to extremes which are ludicrous. It is the fad in Boston to be hypnotized, and fashionable young ladies submit to it with good grace, as for instance in the case of the young women of the Lasell seminary, which is just now attracting the attention of the press, and has evoked a good deal of share and humorous comment.

Just fancy a half dozen or more bright young girls in the hypnotic department of a college, patiently placing themselves under the mysterious influence of a spectacled pro-fessor of the "art" of hypnotism, stretched at full length on the floor, and winking and blinking and performing all sorts of queer antics at a stroke of the enchanter's wand. What a rare spectacle it must be!

It is said that the results of hypnotism will give young women "a better nervous balance" and make them strong for the duties of life, and so forth; but the results in the experiments recently made in this Boston lege were of a totally different nature, for in a state of complete nervous prostration the subjects were taken home, and in several cases sickness ensued, with dangerous ten-

It is charged, and with a degree of truth, that cranks abound in Boston, but that it is not the fashion to consider a Boston man "cranky," no matter what he does-everything with a Boston flavor "goes," and where we can't understand we must wonder and admire.

Perhaps, after all, this hypnotic craze is great thing, and our Boston friends are on the right line. It may simply amount to this-that we do not understand it. We do not understand Browning, and Boston does; and why not with other mysteries as with Browning?

We know that there is such a power as hypnotism, for in a recent trial in one of the courts in this state, a juror avowed that the prisoner at the bar "had hypnotized him," and that he was obliged to bring in the verdict the prisoner wanted, in which, if he had done wrong, he asked the forgiveness of God, in that he was powerless to do other-

With a power as great and mysterious this it would seem to be dangeroos to experiment, as Boston is doing; but of course Boston knows its business, and we only see through a glass darkly.

MR. REED's colleagues refuse to stand by him. This is terrible. A Falstaffian stom without props is in a terrible fix.

ONE paragraph of the new silver bill is a bigger man than Mr. Harrison, but he says he will veto the whole affair. It is an idle boast. Is THERE any republican editor who want veto the free-coinage bill if it comes to him? WHEN a republican senator makes charges against a republican president in a foreign language, it is time for the grand old party to disband.

THE fact that a majority of the republican members of congress are in favor of the demo-cratic silver programme, ought to convince Mr. Harrison that his time has come.

THE attempt of Mr. Reed to floor the hor with his sagging stomach, has proven to be a failure. This was owing to the fact that he was too timid to count the republican al

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: The presence in Georgia of Colonel Richard Malcolm Johnson, of Baltimore, suggests to us the rare excellence of the man, as a scholar, an author, and a genial south man, as a scholar, an author, and a genial south-ern gentleman, to the manor born. It is beyond timate how much we who love the memories of the "old south" owe him for "Dukesborough Tales," including "Old Mark Langston, a tale of Duke's creek." If a phonograph had f.corded the say-ings of our Georgia country folk sixty or seventy years ago, it could hardly have preserved and given them to us more faithfully than "Dukes-borough Tales."

I wish here to suggest to the colonel, and I do so thus publicly because I believe it is a public wish, that he should gives these, "Tales" to the world in a more enduring shape than in the pamphlet form in which they are now published by the Harpers. Since this pamphlet first appeared, he has contributed a number of other stories on the same line, and not less good, to The Century, Harper's, The Cosmopolitan and other magazines. In the February Cosmopolitan, for instance, his sketch of "Mr. Pate and His People" is as deliciously humorous and illustrative as anything he ever wrote. All these stories with the "Tales" proper would make one or two volumes, possibly three, which ought to be in substantial book-form, like "Old Mark Langston," and found in every library of the land. Purity of the Wells.

As has been announced in The Constitution already, the board of health has arranged to have the water of such wells in the city as their owners are doubtful of, analyzed by Mr. John M. McCandless, consulting chemist of the state agricultural department.

The fee charged will be five dollars, a considerable reduction of the regular fees, through the medium of a special arrangement between Professor McCandless and the board.

The reason why this was done was because The reason why this was done was because of the constant demand from property owners who wish to have the quality of water from wells on their premises properly tested.

Professor McCandless said yesterday that he had been called upon repeatedly to analyze water from various wells, but the largeness of the ordinary fee charged deterred many persons from having the work done.

On this account the arrangement was made to have the fees reduced from now until the last of October.

Ist of October.

The work is an important one to those who have wells on their premises, as an analysis settles the question as to the purity of the water, and protects the families using such water from sickness resulting from the use of water that is unwholesome.

As the arrangement is not of recent date,
Professor McCandless has had no calls from riolessor McCandless has had no cans from citizens as yet under that arrangement, but he will soon have plenty of them, and the results of his analyses will be very interesting to the general public.

He has made a number of analyses of the water from different wells owned by those able and willing to pay the regular charges, and the results were uniformly satisfactory.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND

The directors of the chamber offcammerce held a short meeting yesterday for the trans-action of some routine business.

A petition to both branches of congress, asking that sufficient money be appropriated for the work of fixing the Mississippi levees so as to prevent future everflows, was signed by the officers of the chamber of commerce and sent on to Washington. It was decided to retire more of the outstanding bonds of the body, and steps to that end were taken. After the board had adjourned, the question of the presidency for the ensuing year came up in casual discussion. The unanimous senti-ment of the board was emphatic in favor of Mr. Oglesby's re-election and all the members insisted that this should be done.

But Mr. Oglesby couldn't see it in that light, He stated that while he heartily appreciated the honor conferred by such expressions, and though an earnest friend of the chamber of commerce, in justice to his private interests it would be impossible for him to serve

Although it is undoubtedly the desire of Mr. Oglesby to retire from the presidency, the sentiment among the members is unanime against such a step. The splendid condition of the chamber is almost entirely due to his efforts in its behalf, and he certainly deserves great credit. But there is much complished vet. The chamber of commerce is where it is just beginning to be of real value. The next move should be for daily meetings on change, and the receipt of cotton, stocks and produce quotations. President Oglesby is just the man to bringe about such a state of affairs. If, however, he refuses re-election there must be found somebody to push forward this feature of the chamber's work. as the family suffers a sad bereavement FROM OUR NOTEBOOKS.

Still Improving.—At midnight Dr. Boring was resting well, after having passed through a most gratifying day. His family and friends are very hopeful of his recovery.

Granted a Pardon.—Yesterday, Governor Gordon signed a pardon for Sallie Awtrey, sent to the penitentiary for life from Lumpkin county, in 1875. She was convicted of infanticide, and has been confined in the convict camps of the Chatta-hoochee Brick company ever since. Raidingin Har alson.—Deputy Collector Hether-ington and Mr. J. J. Chapman returned yesterday from Haralson county, where they have recently been raiding among the moon-hiners. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning they arrested Oliver N. Mur-phey, who was found at a distillery in a valley. He was carried befor Judge Haight yesterday and bound over until October court.

Coming Home.—Little Ora, Emmie and Johnnie Landrum, the three children of Judge and Mrs. Landrum, will be at home tomorrow from the Academy for the Blind, in Macon, to enjoy their lummer vacation. They are bright children, and their home coming will be very pleasant to their narenth.

The Atlanta Rifles.—The Atlanta Rifles yester-day received a letter from Rome requesting a visit to that city. The letter came from Dr. J. B. S. Holmes, and was addressed to Hon. W. A. Hemphill. The company is wanted in Rome to give an exhibition drill for the benefit of a church the ladies are trying to buid. Captain Spencer is afraid that he and company cannot go.

A Strange Leakage.—Last night parties passing the old capitol were stopped by the sound of falling water within the walls of the building. The leakage seemed to flow in a large stream from the second floor. Efforts were made to enterthe building and find the source of the jwater, but it is not a seem of the seem of t

Uncle Jimmy Harris.—"What has become of Uncle Jim Harris?" is frequently asked by the many friends of this genial old veteran, whose face has been missed from its usual haunts on the streets of Atlanta for a long time. He is now, and has been, confined to his house for six months by address and months by sickness, and is still a great. There is no more popular man in Atlan "Uncle Jim," and his many friends hope will soon be out again.

He Is In Atlanta.—Mr. E. J. Henry, one of the leading citizens of Hawkinsville, is at the Weinmeister. Mr. Henry is agent for the Southers Express company at Hawkinsville, and has been to Louisville attending the annual convention of express men. He is one of the leading merchants of his home, as well as one of the most prominent citizens. Mr. Henry has many friends throughout the state, and those in Atlanta are pleased to see him here. He will leave for home Sunday. Talking for Stewart.—Mr. A. L. Sluder, of Walton county, said yesterday:
"Stewart will carry Walton county beyond doubt, and I believe he will crowd Livingston in Livingston's own county. Yes, sir—Walton is for Stewart."

Five minntes later Mr. T. H. Bryan, Sr., of Converse, said:

Stewart."
Five minntes later Mr. T. H. Bryan, Sr., of Con-yers, said:
"And Rockdale is going for Stewart, too. Liv-ingston will have to fight hard, his neighbors tell me, to carry Newton county." A Dead Man On the Jury .- Here is a peculiar and somewhat interesting story.

Ozburn, the man who kiled J. M. Bradley, was to have been tried last Monday, and the jurors for the trial were drawn from the box.

Then the names were given Balliff Williams so that he might subpena them.

In writing the subpenas the balliff found the name of J. M. Bradley, the man whom Ozburn killed.

It is an unusual thing for a murdered man to be on the jury when the man who committed the dead is to be tried.

If the Census Man Has Missed You

SEND IN YOUR NAME

To the Constitution Office---Atlanta Wants a Full Showing.

Is your name on the census lists? Have you been missed?

Every man, woman and child in Atlanta must be counted in the census of the city, for a full and true count is essential.

All we ask is a fair count, but in that count nobody should be missed.

From different parts of the city come complaints that the count has not been as thorough as it might be and that many people have been missed. Supervisor Thibadeau and his enumerators are working night and day, and are doing all in their power to make the count complete. They deserve the hearty co-operation of every citizen, and to that end THE CONSTITUTION asks:

Have you been missed? Do you know of anybody who has been

Last night's report brought all of the enumerators from the field but three.

All who have finished will go back over their districts today, to catch up the remaining sames omitted by them in the first count.

The remaining three that are now in the field will finish today, most probably, but if not they wil. be allowed to take up the work next week and carry it on to completion.

More than three hundred names were sent to the supervisor yesterday in the districts reported as finished. Many of these were found to have been already enumerated, however, having been given in by friends of the parties.

It is a hard matter to take a perfect census of a great city, and for this reason it is essential for every citizen to aid the enumerators as much as possible, and in every way.

Colonel Thibadeau says he intends to make it a perfect census, and says the men will not be taken from the field until the last man in Atlanta is enumerated.

When asked about the people at the seashore, and if they would all be counted, he

"Yes. Everybody who has a home in Atlanta will be counted, no matter where he is. The enumerators, when they go to a house, don't leave it until they have taken everybody that makes his home there.

"There will be no reason for complaining about the census in Atlanta, I hope. The city is going to show up all right—better than any Southern city, everything considered."

Alleged Interference by St. Paul People With the Census Returns.

St. Paul, June 20 .- The trial of seven Minneapolis census enumerators came up be-fore United States Commissioner McCafferty in this city this morning. They were arrested by United States Marshal Daggett, on Wednesday, on warrants sworn out by William Pitt Murray, of this city, alleging fraudulent actions in connection with their census labors. The warrants were served on them in Minnespelie or Tuesday sight, while they were an The warrants were served on them in Minneapolis on Tuesday night, while they were engaged in comparing their own returns with those of the Business Men's union, by whom an effort was being made to prevent the overlooking of any residents of Minneapolis. It is alleged that false returns were being made, and a mass of documents seized at the same time have been held as evidence in the case. We denesday morning a search warrant was issued in the Minneapolis municipal court, and officers attempted to gain possession of these papers necessary to the completion of the Minneapolis census, but the United States commissioners had given strict orders and no papers were given up.

commissioners had given strict orders and no papers were given up.

The citizens of Minneapolis have been greatly aroused, and appointed lawyers for the defense of the seven arrested enumerators. So much feeling has been engendered that every point in the history of the case has been greatly magnified, and the consequent indignation at what we considered improper and outrageous interference in Minneapolis affairs by the city of St. Paul has been greatly intensified. However, the facts are as above stated, the stories of assaults upon residents of the two cities being not only much exaggerated, but in some cases entirely untrue. exaggerated, but in some cases entirely untrue. Still there has been and is great interest in, and hach excitement over, the case, as was evident about the government building this

Griffin, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—It is very apparent a combine of some kind has been agreed upon between the Central and Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad authorities. Noticing a number of loads of melons going by this route, your reporter asked a railroadman what it meant, and was informed that one of the directors of the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus road told him that they were on good terms with the Central, and expected to get at least one thousand car-loads of melons from the Central road this season.

Another Lockout.

New York, June 20.—Samuel Oppenheimer & Co. locked out one hundred of their cutters and cloak-makers this morning, making twelve houses in all who have now locked out. Seven thousand men and women are idle in consequence of the strike, but they are cheerful, and claim to be able to hold out all the nummer, if necessary to make the employers secognize their union.

APALACHICOLA, Fla., June 20.—A large brick building, known as Ruge Row, burned last night, causing the following losses: On building, $15,000, insurance $500; Brash, Durant & Co., $12,000, insurance $9,500; M. T. Alexander, druggist, $3,500. no insurance; Hoffman & Moore, $2,000, no insurance; Mercen & Bro., $630; Hopper & Son, $800. The second Bro., $630; Hopper & Son, $800.

HANGINGS YESTERDAY.

A Man and His Wife Hanged in Nevada Other Executions. ELKO, Nev., June 20.—Josiah Potts and his wife, Elizabeth Potts, were hanged here at 10,43 this forenoon, for the murder of Miles Faweett in January, 1888.

READING THE DEATH WARRANT.
At 10:30 o'clock this morning the sheriff read the death warrant to the condemned. The reading of the warrant took place in the doorway of the latticed cell, which Josiah has occupied so long. He stood in a most despondent attitude with his head bowed down against the iron bars, and never once during the reading did he lift his head or eyes. His wife stood and he lift his head or eyes. His wife stood erect, clad in a muslin suit, draped in black, with a red rose in her bodice, pale, but with a most determined aspect in every feature. During the reading of her own warrant only once did she show any emotion whatever, and she convulsively clutched her throat when her husband's warrant was being read, and the words "throaced." rant was being read, and the words "hanged by the neck till you are dead" were reached. She gave a hysterical gasp and seemed to exhibit much feeling. The reading of the warrant was finished at twenty minutes to 11 o'clock and both of the condemned emerged from the jail, where they had been confined for eighteen months and proceeded to the yard between the court-house and jail, in which the scaffold had been erected. At the conclusion of the reading of the warrant Mr. Potts earnestly ejaculated: I "I am innocent and God knows it," and Josiah Potts reiterated: "God knows we are

THE MARCH TO THE SCAFFOLD. The gloomy procession made its way through a side-door, and, with bravery unexpected by the spectators, they seated themselves on the stools provided on the scaffold, while the deputies speedily proceeded to bind them with leather straps. Mrs. Potts helped to adjust them herself, and Potts sitting in stolicity.

When everything had been properly adjusted, they were directed to rise. All of the atjusted, they were directed to rise. All of the attendants shook hands with the condemned. As they stood, after shaking hands, Potts made several endeavors to clasp the hand of his wife, without accomplishing it. Finally, a touch on her wrist caused her to turn her eyes toward his and the mute appeal of love caused their lips to meet for a brief moment. A rope was stretched around Mrs. Potts's neck, she clasped her hands together and lifting her eyes toward the sky, exclaimed: "God help me, I am innocent." Her husband reiterated in a hollow tone, "God knows we are both innocent."

THE LAST SCENES.

As the black caps were drawn over their heads, shutting out the last light of day, the words of the clergyman, who had remained with them to the last, broke the silence: "Put your trust in God and He will see you righted," and then the drop fell. Mrs. Potts was at once a corpse, owing to her heavy weight.

A WIFE-MURDERER EXECUTED. QUEBEC, June 20.-Fritz Dubois was hanged in the jail-yard here at 8 o'clock this morning His crime was the murder, in February last, of his wife, his two children and his mother-inlaw, whom he hacked to pieces in a most brutal manner with an ax.

PROCLAIMED HIS INNOCENCE. Belleville, Ont., June 20 .- Peter Edward Davis, who, on September 19th last, murdered his paramour's husband by shooting him through the heart, was hanged here at 8 o'clock this morning. He declared his innocence to the last. While standing on the scaffold, without a tremor, he proclaimed:
"I am innocent, so help me God!"

Davis's neck was broken. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

STORMS IN MISSOURI. Sewers Burst and Cellars Flooded in Atch-

KANSAS CITY, June 20.—Severe electric storms, accompanied by much rain and heavy winds, prevailed last night in northeastern Kansas and western Missouri. At Atchison the fail of rain was exceptionally heavy. Several sewers burst and flooded the cellars all along Commercial street. The greatest injury was occasioned to the offices of the Atchison Champion, Globe and Patriot, whose press-rooms were flooded. The Champion and Globe were consequently unable to issue their regular editions.

At St. Joseph a man who was endeavoring to clear a sewer inlet was swept into the sewer and drowned.

TORNADO IN ILLINOIS. CORNELL, Ill., June 20.—A tornado passed west of here this afternoon, in a path eighty rods wide and about four miles in length. Everything in its path was either totally wrecked or badly damaged. Four people were probably fatally injured, and several others slightly hurt. The most extensive week was at the place of W. D. Connor. His house, barn and other buildings were demolished, and Connor and his wife received fatal injuries.

A school-house, a short distance east, was blown to pieces, and not east, was blown to pieces, and not a timber was left standing. Fortunately the school was not in session at the time. C. C. Leonard's house and other buildings were badly damaged, one of his boys being possibly fatally injured and three others slightly hurt.

THE DAMAGE IN MINNESOTA.

ST. CHARLES, Minn., June 20.—The great storm of Wednesday extended over five miles southeast, varying from one-half to two miles in width, doing great damage to all kinds of crops. This storm was immediately followed by the heaviest rainfall in ten years, registering 2:15 inches in eighteen minutes. Many farms that were already stripped by hail were washed of everything movable, including fences and bridges.

THE LOTTERY BILL.

The Anti-Lottery Men Say the Governor Will Veto the Measure.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 20 .- The Neugass bill, offering $1,250,000 a year for lottery privi-leges, has been introduced in the house by Mr. leges, has been introduced in the house by Mr. Pipes, of Feliciana. Mr. Shattuck denounces the Newgass proposition as a fake, and classes it as an infant born of a blackmailing scheme. He says Mr. Neuman, of New Orleans, wanted to get into the Morris scheme, but as he had not succeeded in doing so, he (Newman) would go as high as $5,000,000 with Neugass's money, which was 5,000 miles away on the other side of the Atlantic. The Morris lottery bill was yesterday engrossed and passed to its third reading in the house, the vote being 62 to 34. Anti-lottery members claim that the governor will veto the lottery measure, and its friends cannot secure the necessary two-thirds vote to pass it over his veto.

Mr. Shattuck said that a commercial man met a friend of Morris at the mayor's hotel, and said that Neugass and himself had been apart a long time, but had now come togtherand were determined to be in on Morris's proposition. Morris's friend said he was chilled by the cool proposition, and asked what would be done if it were refused. "Then we will go before the legislature and make an offer of $1,250,000."

The Sun's Cotton Review. New YORK, June 20.—Futures were quite busy during the morning hours. Liverpool not only reported an advance, but sent buying orders to this market. There was also some speculative this market. There was also some speculative manipulation. August quickly rose fifteen points from the lowest figure of yesterday; July and September not so much, and next crop was only slightly dearer. Soon after the second call at noon came the report of cheaper silver at London, bringing business nearly to a standstill and weakening the market slightly, but the belief that something of a squeeze is to be put upon shorts to help support the spot market at Liverpool prevented selling to any extent and in the last hour on the news that Speaker Reed had been overruled, there was a fresh advance, the close being well up to the best figures of the day. Crop accounts were very good and dealings in the next crop were less active. Cotton on spot was more active, mainly for export.

Cruel, fashionable mother! Why don't you look after the welfare of your sickly little child? The nurse hasn't sense enough to get it a box of Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers.

TWO EFFIGIES.

THE CURIOUS SPECTACLE THAT STARTLED WEST END CITIZENS.

Early Risers Discover Two Grotesque Fig-ures Swinging in the Windows of West End Academy Placarded.

West End is taking on metropolitan ways. In the matter of effigies.

Yesterday morning a citizen of that lovely uburban town discovered two curious looking figures swinging in the windows of the sec-ond story of the West End academy. While he was staring at them in a bewildered way two or three other citizens came up, and an investigation was made. One of the figures was a pretty good imita-tion of a man, and bore a placard on which was written "B. Smith." The other was hardly so fair a figure, but seemed to have answered the purpose of those who fixed it up, and bore a card on which the name "Lambdin" was written in a plain

So soon as the investigators discovered what the effigies were, they cut them down, and removed them from the building. But the news was soon bruited around town, and created a big sensation.

THE MYSTERY
was not solved, and those who found the effigies could only guess at the cause of their being placed there.

And these guesses were probably very nearly correct. They were evidently hung up during the night by some of the pupils of the academy, who were angry with the two gentlemen whose names were attached to them, and who are two of the board of trustees of the school.

two of the board of trustees of the school.

The trouble between the principal of the school, Professor Featherstone and the trustees, is of several months' duration. Professor Featherstone was employed as principal of the school a year ago, and assumed charge.

It was not long before he introduced some new books in the school that did not meet the approbation of the trustees. Then came the disagreement that has grown worse as the end of the term grew near.

A month ago he was notified that he would not be re-elected as principal, and since that time the trouble has increased.

The graduating class had arranged for holding the closing exercises last night, and the young ladies had purchased their dresses and studied their pieces, under the impression that they would enjoy a good night at the windup of the school.

THEY WERE DISAPPOINTED.

that they would enjoy a good night at the wind up of the school.

THEY WERE DISAPPOINTED.

But their anticipations were doomed to disappointment. Because of the differences existing between the principal and trustees, it was decided that the exercises should be held yesterday morning, and the arrangements for a grand closing night all fell through.

Just who was to blame it is hard to say, but some of the boys evidently took umbrage at the matter, and that is the only explanation of the appearance of the effigies in the windows. Meanwhile, the young fadies of the graduating class were very much disappointed, after having notified their friends in advance that they would entertain them with a very enjoyable entertainment at the academy, and then having had to suffer the mortification of such a disappointment in the failure of their cherished plans.

Nobody knows who made the effigies, or who hung them in the windows; but there are many guesses, and most of them are thought to systematic THIEVING.

Jones is charged with stealing from his employer's grocery store.

Theodore Austell, Jones's step-father, was also arrested for receiving the stolen goods.

For a good while back Mr. Harwell has been missing goods from his store, but has never been able to locate the thief. Yesterday he thought he was out a sack of flower and several other articles.

He notified Sergeant English and an investigation was begun. Jones's home on Bush street was visited, and after searching the premises the sack of flour, a lot of tobacco, thread and other things were found.

Mr. Harwell's store is on Marietta street. It was developed that Jones had been in the habit of carrying his plunder to the back end of the store and turning it over to his father, who carried it through a back alley to the railroad, avoiding detection in this way.

There is no telling to what extent Jones and his step-father have been working this scheme.

Both filled berths in the station-house last night.

A TOUGH COUNTY,

Which Has No Interest in the State in Which it is Located.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 20.—[Special.]—The legislature at its last session passed an act levying a tax for the payment of pensioners to ex-confederate soldiers and soldiers' widows. In all the counties, save one, the tax was levied and collected, and paid into the treasury. Mitchell county has not levied the pension tax. The returns made out were sent back to that county in order that they might be completed by the insertion of the tax, but the Mitchell county authorities pay no attenthe Michell county authorities pay no atten-tion to the demand, and have not levied the tax. Proceedings will be instituted against them to compel them to pay it. It is the opinion that they are trying to raise an issue, and to test the constitutionality of this tax. The state board of pensions has ordered that no pensions be paid in any county where there was no pension tax levied. There will be no pensions paid in Mitchell, though quite a number of applications for pensions are on file here. Mitchell is the worst county in the state, and during the war furnished many troops to the federal army, as well as many guerillas and marauders. This matter of its refusal to pay tax will be fully looked into by the state treasurer and attorney-general, and is likely to create considerable trouble

THE FEARFUL GRADE,

Which Sends Cars Down at the Speed of 135 Miles an Hour.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 20 .- [Special.]-The Wednesday, as described by an eye-witness, was one of the most fearful rushes, to destruction on record. It is calculated, by comparing the time the train left Saluda with the time at which Engineer Tunstall's watch stopped, that the train was going at the rate of 135 miles an hour, when the track spread and threw the engine down the mountain side, plunging down 354 feet and tearing up great trees in their path. Tunstall stuck to his engine till it turned over twice, when he was thrown on his head and his neck broken. The cars were loaded with coal and were top heavy. It is said that the engineers have repeatedly protested against bringing such heavy coal trains down this fearful grade.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 20.—[Special.]—
A party of revenue officers, headed by Deputy Collector W. W. Colquitt, went into Cleburne county on a raid Wednesday. That night, they camped in the woods. During the night moonshiners fired into them and drove them from their camp. The moonshiners then destroyed the buggies and stampeded their horses. The officers had to walk to the nearest railroad station next day.

Review of Business for the Past Week by TALKING OF TRADE.

Review of Business for the Past Week by

Dun & Co.

New York, June 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Another week has brought still better crop prospects, a continued increase in the volume of business, more definite assurance of the passage of the tariff bill with the essential features unchanged, and, therefore, more confidence in those industries which look for help from that measure.

On the other hand, the passage of the free silver coinage bill in the senate has raised some doubt whether the two houses may not finally disagree. Expectations based on currency expansion are, therefore, little less confident. But the money markets work easily everywhere, and con-agree. Expectations based on currency expansion are, therefore, little less confident. But the money markets work easily everywhere, and continued exports of gold as yet cause neither disturbance nor apprehension. Reports from all parts of the country continue encouraging. Pittsburg notes some sagging in the iron and steel works, and window glass works have closed for the season, but flint glass is active. Other western and southern reports are of the same general tenor. Better weather and brighter crop prospects stimulate trade in all sections, and collections are good. Great industries are waiting action in congress, which is by many expected to give them a new impetus. But iron is fairly steady at about $17 for southern and $18 for northern No. 1, and sales of rails are at $31 for large orders, deliveries to June 1st this year having been 598,000 tons.

Cotton manufacture waits the departure of artificial speculative prices for cotton, which has declined only a sixteenth during the week.

The state of foreign trade is fair for the season. Exports of bread stuffs, provisions, cotton, petroleum and cattle for May amounted to $36,412,877, or five per cent more than last year, in spite of the great decrease in cotton, all other items gaining. For three weeks of June, exports from New York show a decrease compared with last year of 2.8 per cent, and meanwhile imports, being temporarily swelled by the prospect of higher duties, exceed last year's by twenty per cent. But at this season some excess of imports is usual, and in a short time new and large crops will begin to come forward.

Business failures during the past week number, for the United States 178; Canada 21. For the corresponding week last year theffigures were 193 in the United States and 25 in canada.

STRUCK BY A WATER-SPOUT. A Singular Occurrence in Which a Water-

Spout Parted in Two. RALEIGH, N. C., June 20.-[Special.]-Yesterday at South Fort, there was a remarkable escape of the revenue cutter, Colfsx, from severe damage. A water-spout formed a mile away from where the cutter lay at anchor. The force of wind the drew up water from the river, forming a great column, and in its course made a sound similar to escaping steam, coming in contact with the cutter. The mass of water, strange to say, separated into two columns, one going across into the marshes, the other going up the river, and was last seen at Fort Fisher, where it disappeared. On striking the Colfax the rush of air broke her awnings and carried away articles on deck.

Miss Lula Wood Carries Off the Honor fo Georgia-The Essay in Full-A Grand Gathering of the People.

The closing exercises of the Ben Hill academy took place yesterday at Mount Gilead camp grounds, in Bryant's district. Almost the entire southern part of the dis-district was present, there being several hun-died people under the arbor at the great camp-

The Ben Hill academy is under the direction of Professor W. H. Ferguson, who has made an admirable success of his first year's work. The exercises yesterday showed that his pupils had become thorough masters of their studies, and had attained a degree of proficiency which re-flect great credit on his management. IT WON THE FLAG.

Six months ago the Youths' Companion offered a handsome United States flag for the best essay submitted from each state in the union on the subject, "The Patriotic Influence of the American Flag when Raised Over the

The Ben Hill academy won the honor for Georgia, and a feature of yesterday's exercises was the immense flag, which hung over the stage. It was won through the essay of Miss Lula Wood, a charming young lady, who has made a wonderful record in the school. She is the grand-daughter of Judge J. J. Fain, of Bryant's district, one of Fulton county's oldest citizens. The essay is good enough for THE CONSTITUTION to publish it entirely, and we give it as follows:

give it as follows:

Our government is one "of the people, by the people, for the people," and that this people should be actuated by feelings purely patriotic, is a fact of deepest concern to every citizen. This republic born of patriots and defended by patriots, is of just such a mechanism as will fourish only in the hands of patriots. The more patriots the better our government. Everyone realizes this, and the good people are utilizing every feasible means to increase the number. Churches have been reared, colleges founded and schools established.

Many of these colleges and schools are supported by the state, that its children may be educated and prepared to perform the duties, both public and private, that will be thrust upon them in maturer years.

r years, er these schools, as the Youths' Companion suggested, the American flag would be an adhas suggested, the American flag would be an additional incentive to the young to become patriotic. At first, this would appear to have but little significance, but with mature consideration, how different are our views! We realize that it is a happy thought, founded upon a principle that is backed by the wisdom of Solomon, and substantiated by the experience of the world. If we would have the children of our country become patriotic citizens, we must train them while they are young, before their minds are biased by prejudice or tainted with sectional differences.

To do this we must begin in the school-room. We should say then, raise the American flag over the innocent hearted children, and impress them with its beauty when they first enter upon the path of knowledge. Let them learn that it is the ensign of their country, and that they are represented in its stars and stripes, let them learn that it is placed over these schools because they are public institutions, supported by the state, for their innovement. Let them know that they are ensign of their country, and that they are represented in its stars and stripes, let them learn that it is placed over these schools because they are public institutions, supported by the state, for their improvement. Let them know that they are not only represented, but protected by this flag, and a love will be kindled which, if properly managed by the teacher, will burn away the greatest barriers to our country's progress.

Let them learn its history during the revolution, and see the cloud of oppression that was over the American people when this flag was raised to assert their independence. Let them learn of the bravery and determination of their ancestors at Lexington, Bunker's Hill, Saratoga and Yorktown. Let them know that the same flag, and the same government for which Washington and LaFayette fought still exists, and is providing means for their education and happiness.

Such knowledge will fire the young with such enthusiastic love and devotion for their flag and country as will liberalize their views and enable them to dig deeper than sectional interest for truth and the right.

They can then look, with an impartial eye, at our civil war and see merit on both sides of Mason and Dixon's line. The north can see that the south made war against them upon principles which they believed to be right; and the south and the south made war against them upon principles which they believed to be right; and the south en orth was only maintaining the principles of Patrick Henry when he exclaimed, "The union now and forever one and inseperable." Thus, the great chasm between the north and the south will be bridged, and the American people be united as they were in 1776—with a country so rich, a government so strong and a history so bright as to inspire a loftier patriotism than animates the hearts of any other people.

Each department of the academy occupied the attention of the audience in turn, and acquitted itself with credit.

The South Georgia College.

The South Georgia College.

DAWSON, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The commencement exercises of the South Georgia Male and Female college, which closed Wednesday night with a splendid concert by Mrs. W. M. Robinson's music class, were replete with interest from beginning to end. On Tuesday the speeches by the boys and young men, and the recitations by the girls and young ladies, were truly admirable, and delighted the audience which gathered at Hart's opera-house to hear them. Tuesday night 'the laughable play, 'The Deestrict Skule," was rendered by the pupils and a pleasant evening was spent in listening to that and other attractive features on the programme. Wednesday morning the graduating class entertained their friends and the public, by their well-written essays and a very fine oration by Mr. T. C. Heyl, whose subject was "Progress." He made a graceful and admirable speech, and completely captured the andience. Miss Florence Roberson read an excellent composition, her subject being "Practical Education." Miss Mamie Bridges chose as the theme for her splendid composition "Female Education." Hers, too was a most admirable essay.

Mr. W. W. Turner, of the Albany News and Advertiser, who had agreed to deliver the literary address, disappointed the large sudience that was anxiously expecting to hear him, as he failed to come. He was unavoidably prevented from coming, and the last telegram from him Wednesday morning put President Robinson on notice that he was without a speaker for commencement day. In this omergency, our townsman, Mr. James G. Parks, was pressed into service, and reluctantly consented to act as a "substitute." He made an extemporaneous speech on the theme, "Ideals and their Attainment." He spoke for nearly thirty minutes, and was frequently interrupted by apphause, and was frequentl

The diplomas were then awarded to the graduating class by Professor Robinson, president of the college, after a very appropriate though short address by him.

The concert Wednesday night by the music pupils of Mrs. W. M. Robinson was a splendid success and greatly enjoyed by all present. The programme throughout was admirably executed, and reflected much credit upon both the scholars and their efficient teacher.

The Harwood Commencement Exercises.

MARIETTA, Ga., June 20.—[Special.]—The beautiful and interesting commencement exercises of Harwood Female seminary have been the absorbing theme here this week. been the absorbing theme here this week. The court-house for the past two nights, not withstanding the very warm weather, has been crowded until even standing room was at a premium. The programme for Wednesday evening was highly entertaining and beautifully carried out. The debate by four young ladies on the subject, "Resolved, That Education in the Schools of Georgia Should Be Compulsory," was very greatly enjoyed by the large crowd present. For the affirmative were Miss Sallie Mauget and Miss Rosa Wing; negative, Miss Katie Reynolds and Miss Grace McClatchy. The decision was rendered in favor of the negative by Judge George F. Gober, Hon. A. S. Clay and Colonel E. Faw. Another enjoyable feature of the programme was Old Folks' Concert, and the antique costumes of old ladies gotten up and worn by the girls, was amusing in the extreme. Thursday was commencement day, and was devoted to hearing the junior and senior essays. Then came the beautiful address of Rev. Dr. J. W. Lee, of Atlanta, on "H. W. Grady," after which, was the delivery of diplomas.

The programme for last night was second and third year elocution concert, after which Professor Stewart presented the medals that had been awarded, to the following young ladies:

THE DECISION HELD UP. Judge Richard H. Clark Has Not Sentenced

Four indictments were found by the grand jury against Mess. De Bardiebaum and Me-Bride, whose place is above the Big Bonanza, and Kneeland and McDowell, in the baement of the Gate City bank building for selling pools on horse races.

The basis of the indictment was an act of the legislature found since 1882, amending the section of the code referring to gambling and gaming houses. The amendment makes the statute read in such a way as to cover all sorts of gambling, and it was claimed that these pool sellers came under the general head of gaming.

Judge Richard H. Clark heard the cases Wednesday and decided to hold up his decision until Monday next, so as to give the

A reward of $50 was offered yesterday at the executive department for the arrest and de-livery to the sheriff of Fulton county of Charles Lane, who murdered William Nolan on the 29th of last December.

The governor pardoned yesterday a negro woman who had been in the penitentiary for twenty years-longer than any other woman in the camp.

Her name is Sallie Autry.
She was convicted of infanticide in Lumpkin county, in 1870, and sentenced for life. She was convicted on circumstantiallevidence and a confession. She was very young at the time, and weak-minded, and in consideration of all this, and the fact that she has served so long a time already, the pardon was granted. The petition was a very strong one.

C TATE OFGEORGIA, FULTON COUNTY—TO D the Superior Court of said County.—The petition of James W. English, Julius L. Brown, George W. Parrott, Thomas J. James, William B. Lowe and James M. Smith, respectfully shows: First. That petitioners desire to be incorporated and made a body corporate and politic, under the laws of Georgia, under the corporate name and style of THE PIEDMONT BROOM COMPANY. Second. The objects of said corporation are pecuniary gain to its stockholders, by means of engaging in the business of manufacturing and selling brooms of all kinds, and also materials from which they are made.

of all kinds, and also materials from which they are made.

Third. The particular business of said corporation will be to manufacture brooms in the county of Fulton. near a station upon the Western and Atlantic railroad known as Bolton, near the Chattahoochee river, and of selling brooms at said point, and also at such other points as they may find sale for the same, and also by selling broom materials at places where the same may be sold.

Fourth. Petitioners desire to be incorporated for the term of twenty years, with the privilege of renewal as often as the same can be done under the laws. They desire the corporation to have the power of sueing and being sued, and to have and to use a corporate seal, and to have succession, and to make such by-laws as it wishes, binding on its members, not inconsistent with the laws of this state or of the United States and to alter, amend and rescind the same at plet sure. That it have the power to receive, rent, lease, purchase, hold and operate all such real and personal property as may be necessary for the legitimate purposes of said corporation, or for securing debts thereof, and to dispose of said property or any part thereof at pleasure. That it have the power to borrow money, to issue bonds to secure the same by mortgage or mortgages, deeds or deeds of trust, or either or both of them, from time to time, as it may desire. That it have the power for the management of its affairs to elect a president, vice-president, treasurer and general manager, who may be directors, and a board of, six directors, and to increase the same at pleasure, and also to elect such other officers, managers, directors and agents as it may desire from time to time. That it have the power and authority to president, vice-president, treasurer and general manager, who may be directors, and a board of six directors, and to increase the same at pleasure, and also to elect such other officers, managers, directors and agents as it may desire from time to time. That it have the power and authority to employ and use convict labor to perform its labor or work, and that it have the power of a natural person to do all such other acts as may be necessary for the legitimate execution of its powers in the carrying out of its purposes.

Fifth. Petitioners show that the capital stock of said corporation upon its organization will be ten thousand dollars, and they desire the corporation to have the power of increasing its capital stock from time to time as its business or as its interest may require, to twenty-five thousand dollars, and that said stock be divided into shares of one hundred dollars, each. They desire that none of the stock of said corporation hall at any time be assessable after the same has been fully paid, either in cash or in property.

Sixth. Petitioners desire that the chief office and place of business of said corporation, and the place of holding its annual elections, shall be at its manufactory, near said town of Bolton, in said state and county, and that it have the power also to establish and to remove branch offices and also of doing business in any other place in this state or beyond the limits of this state as it may deem that its interests requires from time to time.

Seventh. Petitioners pray that they may be made a body corporate and politic under the name aforesaid and with all the powers and privileges as aforesaid. That this petition may be recorded by the clerk of the superior court of said county, and that the same may be published in the Atlant Constitution, a public gazette of said county of Fulton, one a week for one month, and that afterwards that the court will pass an order declaring said application granted.

And petitioners will ever pray.

NER,

The Piedmont exposition promises to be the greatest thing of its kind ever witnessed in this section of the continent.

The unsurpassed programme for the military display is now attracting the attention of the best companies in America, and will bring such a contest to the forthcoming exposition as was never seen in the southern states.

Both the state and interstate drills, with the handsome prizes offered, are engaging the con-sideration of the military men, and every mail brings scores of inquiring letters to the desk of President J. R. Wylie.

Companies from the west, as well as from the north and east, have written for further information regarding the interstate drills, and the companies of Georgia are fully alive to the interest that centers in the state drills.

The Grady Cadets Will Enter, One of the rules of the state drills requires that each company must be of the Georgia militia to enter, and accordingly the Grady Cadets would be ruled out of the drill, but President Wylie says arrangements will be made by which the Grady Cadets will be allowed to

"It is hardly fair," says he, "to keep such a splendid company out of the drill for no other reason than because the state was too poor to equip these young soldiers. We shall certainly arrange to have them in the drill." The Grady Cadets have already fixed their eyes on the first prize in the state drill, and will spare no efforts to win it from the others. It is surprising how efficient the company has become within the short time since its organi-They will enter the drill with bright prospects for the first prize.

The Exposition Circular. The management has issued the following circular, which is being sent to every quarter of the country, in response to the numerous quiries received daily about the drills.

The circular reads as follows: The circular reads as follows:

The unprecedented success attending the exposition, held by the Piedmont Exposition company during the years 1887 and 1889, has induced the management for the future to hold annual expositions. Encouraged by past success and by the invaluable benefits that have flowed to the south as results of former expositions held under its auspices, the exposition company has de-termined that nothing which capital, energy, en-terprise, public spirit and untiring work can ac-complish will be left undone to make the exposition of 1800 an unrivaled success. Every calling and pursuit in the country will be interested; the unbounded enthusiasm of all classes will be en-listed, and it will be made to the interest of every city, village, town and hamlet of our section to contribute to the success of the enterprize, and to this end it invites as participants in its work of enlightenment and development men and indus-this end it invites as participants in its work of enlightenment and development men and industries from any section of the republic.

Realizing the very great interest now manifested in military affairs all over the country, the management of the Piedmont Exposition company will make the military displays and contests a special feature of the exposition.

Handsome prizes will be offered to be contested for by the best companies of the republic. It is intended to show that the military feature will eclipse anything ever witnessed in the south.

Large numbers of inquiries from prominent military companies regarding the drill during the coming exposition have been recieved, and aided by the enterprising citizens of Atlanta, the Exposition company has decided in having the grandest drill and tournament ever witnessed.

The objects of this grand drill and military display are to induce a more fraternal spirit between the soldiers of our sister states, to clevate the standard of military drill and discipline, and to give the citizens of distant as well as neighboring states a most favorable opportunity to visit Atlanta, the largest industrial and manufacturing center, as well as the great southern distributing point, and the Piedmont section, at present the center of attraction, embracing the richest part of the country.

Add to this the special features ever presented at any southern exposition, the delightful

THE GAULTS DISCHARGED.

The Coroner's Jury Finds a Verdict and Adjourns Yesterday.

The coroner's jury concluded its three days'

investigation of the Lovelace tragedy late yesterday evening.

John Gault and Charlie Gault, the two men for whom warrants were issued, charged with being responsible for Lovelace's death. were exonerated.

The verdict of the jury was that Lovelace came to his death from being run over by a freight train on the Western and Atlantic road while intoxicated.

Nobody is made responsible for the killing, but the last clause of the verdict states that the railroad was not wholly blameless. Lovelace was killed Tuesday night. The coroner's jury has held session every day since, and a great deal of evidence has been introduced.

There were two theories about Lovelace's horrible death.

One was that he had committed suicide, and the other that he had been killed and then placed upon the track in front of the incoming freight train.

William Gault and Charlie Gault, whose step-sister Lovelace had married and then separated from, after living together only a few weeks, were suspected of being responsible for the tragedy.

The three men were together on Tuesday evening just before the killing. All were drinking, and Lovelace made several threats about taking his own life.

G. W. Smith, one of the witnesses yester-day, testified that he had seen Charlie Gault drag Lovelace from the cross-ties before approaching trains twice during the evening He also heard Lovelace say that he intended to kill himself, that his wife had caused him a great deal of trouble, and he was tired of living anyway.

From other evidence it appeared that Lovelace and the Gaults were on good terms, notwithstanding the strained relations between their step-sister, his wife and himself.

The Gault family live out in the country, and no notice had been served upon Charlie or his brother. They were served with notice Thursday evening, and yesterday both appeared before the jury of inquest. Last night they returned to their home free from any charge of implication in the death of

A Woman in the Case,

There always is. She is the power behind the throne. A woman's influence over the man who loves her is often absolute. To wield man who loves her is often absolute. To wield so great a power to guide, strengthen and help her husband, a woman's mind should be clear and healthy. It cannot be if she is suffering from any functional derangement. How many a home is made unhappy because she who should be its life and light is a wretched, depressed, morbid invalid! Wives, mothers and daughters, why suffer from "female complaints" which are sapping your lives away, when Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will renew your health and gladden those about you? It has restored happiness to many a saddened life. Why endure martyrdom when release is so easy? In its special field there never was a restorative like the "Favorite Prescription."

To cleanse the stomach, liver, and system generally, use Dr. Pierce's Pellets. 25 cents.

SOME RARE RACING.

MOVEMENT TO HAVE FOURTH OF JULY AMUSEMENTS.

An Extraordinary Programme Mapped Out

—The Interest in the Turf, and How It is Increasing in Atlanta.

Atlanta is to have some Fourth of July

The programme for having them at Piedmont park is now being arranged.

It is proposed to bring several extraordinary racers here for the occasion, and the best in the stables of Atlanta will speed around the turf that day.

The plan is in the hands of the most experienced racing men in the city, and the track out at Piedmont park is being put in excellent trim by Mr. S. A. Hughes, the manager of the

Mr. Hughes is also putting a number of the best horses at the park in fine condition for the races, and says there will be some astonishing records resulting from the forthcoming track contests. There are other stables that will be represented on the track that day with their very best horse-flesh, and if signs count for aught, the people of Atlanta will find it more than worth the while to spend the afternoon of the 4th of July in the grand stand out at Piedmont park.

The Kingsbery stables at Carrollton will be represented with their fleetest-footed horses, and it is probable that the famous racers at the Columbia, S. C., stables will be brought

If the men who have the races in hand succeed in raising as handsome a purse as they wish to do, it is quite probable that the Columbia, S. C., horses, that as well as many others of splendid records, will be secured for the races.

ATLANTA'S NEW STOCK FARM The interest in fine horses was never at a higher pitch in Atlanta than now. Mr. Joseph Thompson has just purchased a large farm on the Belt line at the extremity of Peachtree street and proposes to establish there a model stock farm.

Mr. Thompson already owns several fine blooded horses, and is training some of them to records truly wonderful.

He has decided to enter the business more extensively than ever before, and proposes to build up right here in Atlanta a stock farm that will in due season be the home of some of the most famous racers on the American turf. He will spare no efforts nor expense to make a model stock farm out at his new tract of land, and will bring to Atlanta some of the best blooded horses in the land. Mr. Hoke Smith and Mr. Thompson are sit well With Your Kidneys?

Few appreciate the constant duties performed by the Kidneys, yet fewer appreciate how easily these important organs are deranged. The Kidneys are bean-shaped, filled with voins, arteries and little tubes; these tubes filter the water from the blood; the water thus collected is rounded into the ureters, and by them conducted poured into the ureters, and by them conducted into the bladder.

Another function of the Kidneys is to eliminate urea, uric acid and other waste products which so quickly poison the whole system if left to course through the blood.

Now, when the Kidneys become diseased and fail to discharge their important functions, the skin, liver, bowels and lungs undertake the work of elimination—a work these organs are unfitted to perform.

"RUTH, THE MOABITESS"

THE CANTATA AT THE CHURCH OF

Interesting News of Society-E People Who are Out of the City— Points About People.

The cantata, "Ruth the Moabitess," was beautifully rendered last evening at the Church of the Redeemer. It was financially, as well as artistically, a success, and quite a handsome sum was realized for the Home for the Friendless. The church was filled, notwithstanding the uncertain church was filled, notwithstanding the uncertain and unpromising weather, and those present had an evening of rare pleasure.

The cantata is founded upon the story of Ruth in the Bible. The narrative is well carried through,

All was under the direction of Professor C. M. Rathburne. Miss Katie Bunker was accompanist. The soloists were: Miss Louise Prather, Mrs. Tyler, Miss Grace Brown, Miss Adelaide Glenn, Mr. Pat O'Connor, and Mr. C. T. Eden, Eador, and

The use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. One bottle may not cure "right off" a complaint of years; persist until a cure is effected. As a general rule, improvement follows shortly after beginning the use of this medicine. With many people, the effect is immediately noticeable; but some constitutions are less susceptible to medicinal influences than others, and the curative process may, therefore, in such cases, be less prompt. Perseverance in using this remedy is sure of its reward at last. Sooner or later, the most stubborn blood diseases yield to

While the two boys were talking about the money, Mr. Ziramerman, the senior partner of the firm, passed by on his way to the countingroom, and scanned them closely as he noticed the transfer of the money to Marshall's pocket-

A few mements later, an errand boy told Marshall that Mr. Zimmerman would like to see him in the counting room. Dropping his work, the young clerk proceeded at once to see his employer, wondering at the strange summons; for he had never had one of the kind before. He found Mr. Zimmerman alone in his private office, and looking unusually severe and

As Archie knocked at the door, the mrchant without looking up, told him to come in and be seated. After a few moments' silence, Mr.

Zimmerman looked up.
"Marshall," said be, "I'm a plain-spoken man, and will not beat about the bush at all. We have lately been missing small sums of money from the cash drawer, and, while I am loathe to suspect you, I would like to examine that five dollar bill which you have in your rocket."

"Certainly, Mr. Zimmerman," replied Archie, promptly handing his employer his pocket-book; "but, excuse me, sir, I don't think I quite understand you, sir," he continll, Marshall, it is just this. As I told "Well, Marshall, it is just this. As I told you before, we have been missing money, and took the precaution to mark some bills with a private mark in the effort to trace the guilty person. As I passed you in the store a little while ago, I saw Franklin give you what I thought I recognized as one of those marked notes. Ah! here it is now!" contained the merchant; "and here is the mark!"

Saying this, he drew forth the note which Franklin had given Marshall, and pointed to an "X" in one corner, which had apparently been made in red ink with a quilt peu.

"And here is another!" he exclaimed a moment later, as he disclosed the other note belonging to Marshall, which also bere the guilty mark.

The young clerk was too much shocked and surprised, for a time, to make any answer. His face flushed and paled by turns, but it was not with emotions of guilt or fear; and he looked squarely into the merchant's face as he strove to collect his scattered thoughts.

"I cannot imagine how this can be, Mr. Zimperman," he finally gasped. "The first note

"I cannot imagine how this can be, Mr. Zimmerman," he finally gasped. "The first note you saw belongs to Franklin, and the other I got as part of last week's salary. Franklin cannot save money, and he asked me to keep his five dollars for him."

"I am very sorry Marshall," responded the merchant, "but the proof is too plain. Your resignations will be accepted, to take effect at once. Of course it will be impossible to keep you or Fraklin longer in our employ after this evidence of guilt on your part."

"But you will allow me to call Edward, will you not, Mr. Zimmerman?" pleaded the young cierk.

in his salary, and that is where I got mine."

"That will do, Marshall," said the merchant coldly. "You and Franklin will hand in your resignations immediately. I could make it go a great deal harder with you, but I hope this will serve as a salutary lesson to you in the future. On this account, and in consideration of your youth, I feel disposed to be lenient toward you." ie turned about with flaming cheeks and trembling lips, and was in the act of leaving the office with his fellow-clerk when Mr. Ford, the junior partner came in:

"Halloo, Marshall! what is the trouble?"
Mr. Ford asked, noticing Archie's unusual appearance. It was as much as the young clerk could do to keep back the tears as he answered faitarings.

faiteringly,—

"Simply this, Ford: both of them had barked notes in their possession, and acknowledged them to be theirs."
"Let me see the notes," said Mr. Ford.
Mr. Zimmerman handed him the marked ills, and he examined them very closely.

"I really believe you are right," acknowleged the senior partner, examining the four notes in turn. "I recollect mixing the marked notes with others of the same denomination, and putting them all in the cash drawer together. Afterward, I went hurriedly to the cash drawer and took out some for my own use, and must have taken the marked bills without noticing the fact. Boys," he continued, turning to the young clerks, "I owe you an numble apology. Consider it made, in part, until Saturday night, when an increase in salary will complete it. I am truly glad your innocense has been so quickly and thoroughly satabilished."

Marshall and Franklin received the promadstant and Franklin received the prom-ised increase at the end of the week, by which fine the guilty person was detected and pun-ished. The two young clerks afterward be-came the successors of Zimmerman & Co., and among the first things they did was to hang in their counting-room a modest placard bearing the legend: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

Children Enjoy The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the farther or mother be costive or bilious the most gratifying results follow its use, so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

Fortune Seeking Emigrants.

Many a poor family that seeks the Western wilds in the hope of winning a fortune, is preserved from that insidious foe of the emigrant and frontiersman—chills and fever—by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. So effectually does that incomparable medicinal defense fortify the system against the combined induence of a malaritem. ous atmosphere and miasma-tainted water, that protected by it the pioneer, the miner or the tourist provided with it, may safely encounter the danger.

IT WILL CURE YOU.

Opelika Mineral Water, at Opelika, Ala., Is Effecting Wonderful Cures.

This water, discovered several months ago, is one of the finest waters ever offered to the public. It is found upon careful analysis to contain curative properties that are simply marvelous. It is a sure cure for indigestion, impure blood, and all kindred diseases. We do not claim that it is a cure-all, but we know that for indigestion, dyspesia and for all blood troubles, it has no equal.

OPELIKA, ALA., Feb. 20, 1890.

LOUIS CHERRY, Esq.:

DEAR SHE-It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of the Opelika Mineral (Water. For three years I had blood poison and Aleumatism. My hands were almost a soild sore from impure blood. After using the water for three weeks my hands are well and my health is better than for years. Dr. Lupton, the State Chemist, who analyzed this water, told me it was the best medicinal water he ever analyzed. If this testimonial can be of use to you, you can use it. I am seventy-four years old, and this water is the best blood purifier I ever saw. It will give you an appetite when everything else fails.

F. C. SLAPPY. From David A. Smith.

"He can tell where he got his note," explained Marshall.

When Franklin entered the office, in response to the summons, his fellow-clerk asked him.—

"Where did you get that five dollar bill you gave me to keep for you, Edward?"

"It was a portion of my last week's salary," replied Frank, at a loss to understand the query.

"There is some terrible mistake about this, Mr. Zimmerman," protested Archie. "I never stole anything in my life; and I certainly would not begin now, when I have everything that I need and am getting well paid for my work. You hear Edward say he got his note in his salary, and that is where I got mine."

"That will do, Marshall," said the merchant coldly. "You and Franklin will hand in your resignations immediately. I could make it go by its use. Traly, David A. Smith.

"The could be got his note," and the open in the complete on the last of the open in the control of the last of the open in the upbuilding of a wasted system. My opposition at first stubborn, was forced to yield to the overwhelming power of the testimony furnished by its use. Traly, David A. Smith.

The Cassell Publishing company, of New York, publish three editions of the "Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff." The one they first issued at $2.00 has been reduced to $1.50; there is another in plainer binding at $1.00, and a third in paper at 50 cents. These editions are printed from the same plates. Nothing has been "suppressed" in this translation of Mile. Bashkirtseff's Journal. Mrs. Sertano simply left out such parts as were uninteresting or trivial. One of the very reasons why the sale of the American edition of this journal has so far exceeded that in the original French is the very fact of judicious editing on the part of the translator. Scene-First Dinner to the Family Physican by Young Married Couple.

Family Physician—Do you know, there seems to be a natural flavor about this food that is most appetizing? What method do you use in cooking it?

Lady of the House—Well, Doctor, when I was at home, my mother would have no other than a Charter Oak Stove. From my earliest recollection I remembered how she would praise it, and her cooking was superb. So when we were married I insisted on having the same kind of stove. Of course the improvements made on them since mother bought hers, are most wonderful. Ours has all the latest, including the Wire Gauze Oren Doors. I don't understand the process exactly, but they tell me that all meats cooked in ovens with these doors, retain their juices and flavors to a much greater degree than by any other means. Can you explain the theory, Charles?

Charles (the Husband)—I can't remember all that was told me, but I know the Doctor can give a most clear and scientific statement of the reasons can y un not Doctor?

Doctor—Well, it is hardly professional to ask such information from a doctor; in fact, I am inclined to think he would not be helping his practice much by saying anything in favor of the Charter Oak Stoves. But as I have one in my kitchen, and know something about it, I think I can enlighten you. Of course it would take quite a long lecture to explain everything to you scientifically, and we have not time for that. Count Rumford, an Ancerican, who was Knighted in Europe for his scientific attainments, pointed out, nearly a hundred years ago, that baking and roasting meats in air tight ovens was wrong, and he proved it by actual experiments. He asserted that it was as essential to health that our food should be cooked in pure, fresh air as that we should breathe pure, fresh air, and that air tight ovens read rethe air impure, and he food cooked therein became tainted and unhealthy. But how to properly ventilate the oven was not discovered for many years after Count Rumford's time. The difficulty was to allow fresh air to enter the oven uniformly without cooling it percept its most nutritious juices, which become dried out. Ventilating the oven prevents this waste, and the meat is cooked perfectly in the same way as broiling over a charcoal fire or roasting in the old fashioned spit of our grandfather's time. Fresh air, or the oxygen furnished by the air, also improves the baking of bread, making it much lighter and more easily digested. Bread baked in a charter tak Stove with Wire Gauze Oven Doors will never mould, and that is very strong proof that the bread is nurse and healthy

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The stock market today continued its reaction from the sharp and sudden depression, and while not active nor specially depression, and while not active nor specially strong, displayed a slow and steady appreciation, which lifted prices before the close to large fractions above has tevening's figures. The market at present is most affected by the prospects of silver legislation, the railroad situation and possibly further gold exports. Gold exports are undoubtedly special orders made at a loss, and have as yet had not the slightest influence upon the money market, as rates on call are now lower than before the first apparagement of the engagement of gold. the first announcement of the engagement of gold. The continued flow of funds to this center, with a The continued flow of runds to this center, with a very limited demand for speculative purposes, more than supplying the drain, which it is felt cannot continue long, and today one of the orders of yesterday was countermanded. The covering of shorts was continuous, but there were evidences of new buying for long account, and a suspicion that preparations for another rise is in propicion that preparations to anomal was steady gress gains believers. The demand was steady though slow, and the market, after the first hour's trading, showed no indication of a pressure anywhere. There were, however, few features of importance developed, weakness in Sugar Refineries in the afternoon and marked strength in Chicago Gas at the same time being the only ones of prominence. The close was quiet to dull and firm at about the best prices of the day, with most of the list fractionally better than last evening. Specially strong stocks were Wheeling and Lake Eric, Pacific Mail and Chicago Gas, the first named being 114 per cent higher and the others 1 per cent each. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, June 20—[Special]—Though spinners bought but 5,000 bales in Liverpool today the arrival market closes firm at 2 points advance, and many cables have been received here today reporting a better tone to Manchester. Our own cables state the weak long interest in Liverpool has been liquidated, and a steadier tone abroad is locked-for, though the production of goods in Manchester exceeds the demand. Locally our market closes steady at a sharp advance from last evening upon buying for Liverpool account early in the day, together with local covering and open effort to close the market good for its effect on Liverpool tomorrow. Business has not been gen-Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

eral, as merchants do not favor active trading in the summer positions on account of our light stock. New crop positions are steadier in sympa-thy with July and August, present prices being considered safe in view of the probable unfavor-ble weather for July and August, when accounts of degree are negally received. of damage are usually received.
